Fair paid attendance falls short of 1975 record total

By MARK REA
Record-Herald Staff Writer

The 1976 Fayette County Fair came to an end Saturday under the same clear skies that were common throughout the entire week, establishing a record three consecutive years without precipitation.

Total paid attendance at the 1976 Fayette County Fair failed to surpass the record-shattering figure established a year ago, according to the fair officials.

George Finley, secretary of the Fayette County Agricultural Society (county fair board), said the total paid attendance (after 4 p.m.) for the seven-day exposition was 23,523 persons, down 877 persons from the record set in 1975.

A total of 24,400 persons paid admissions at the 1975 Fayette County Fair to establish the record.

Saturday's attendance at the fair totalled 3,607 persons after 4 p.m. That figure was also down when compared with the 1975 Saturday total of 4,037. Good Hope Lions Club members parked a total of 765 vehicles on the fairground parking areas after 4 p.m.

This year's daily paid fair attendance totals were:

Sunday, 1,905; Monday, 2,654; Tuesday, 2,537; Wednesday, 3,376; Thursday, 4,718; Friday, 4,726, and Saturday, 3,607.

The Junior Fair ended Saturday afternoon with the awards round-up and fond memories of the past week. Awards were presented to winners of various competitions that took place before and during the fair. In addition, outstanding 4-H club members and officers were recognized for service in the past year.

As the awards round-up went on, many 4-H members thought back to the livestock shows, the highlights of the Junior Fair. Many remembered the big winners at the fair including Belinda Melton with her grand champion steer, Cindi Grover with three grand championships in the lamb shows, Jeff Hughes with his grand champion barrow, and Beth Jenks with her win in the "Showman of Showmen" competition.

GOOD-BYE, FAIR — Saturday was the last day of the Fayette County Fair, and in many cases, the fairgoers seemed to be giving the rides a thorough going-over, as sunny skies and a cooling breeze prevailed during much of the day.

The midway was in operation until late Saturday when rides and concessions were dismantled and traveled on to the next location. Some were to go to Circleville for the Pickaway County Fair which started Sunday while others headed for the Greene County Fair in Xenia which starts Tuesday.

Most of the exhibits were removed from various buildings Saturday afternoon and nothing but ghosts of animals remained in the livestock

Little movement in coal strike

By The Associated Press

Picket lines today dashed the hopes of West Virginia coal operators that some miners would break ranks in a two-week-old wildcat strike that has spread to 80,000 miners in seven states.

"It didn't pan out," said a spokesman for Consolidation Coal Co. Pickets were marching at its 11 mines, which employ 3,700 men, and no workers showed up for the early shift. A spokesman at the Eastern Associated Coal Co.'s Federal No. 1 mine at Grant Town said "a carload and a truckload" of pickets appeared and no miners reported for work.

Meanwhile, many of California's canneries reopened after settlement of a harvest-time strike by 60,000 cannery workers, and the nation's air traffic controllers ended a work slowdown that caused delays at a few airports. No solution was in sight, however, for the rubber workers strike that has idled 60,000 workers for 104 days.

A weakening in the coal strike had seemed likely after United Mine Workers' District 31, representing about 20,000 miners in northern West Virginia, voted over the weekend to heed its leadership's call to return to work today.

But more than 1,500 miners in the southern areas, including the 213 members of Local 1759 who started the strike, vowed Sunday to press their walkout, despite a federal judge's offer to cancel $300,000 in fines if they went back.

Local 1759 president Hayes Holstein had predicted after the vote that "if they (miners in the north) go back, we'll just send up pickets and have them out again."

The weekend meetings had been called at the direction of UMW President Arnold Miller, who told local union presidents on Friday in Charleston, W.Va., to order their members back to work.

The miners said they would not return unless they got to meet with officials of the Bituminous Coal Operators Association to discuss their grievances. They claim the association relies too much on the courts to solve disputes which could be handled at the local level through union grievance procedures.

Local 1759 struck last month over a job-posting grievance at the Cedar Coal Co. mines. When a judge fined the local $50,000 plus $25,000 a day, other locals joined the strike in sympathy.

Hundreds stranded by disaster

Colorado flood takes 58 lives

LOVELAND, Colo. (AP) — "The people in the restaurant began screaming. Within seconds, the restaurant, still full of people, plunged into the river. It was some sort of a dream. It wasn't really happening."

But it was, for Douglas Magill of Mishawaka, Ind., and his wife, Phyllis. And for hundreds of other persons stranded as a 12-foot wall of water surged down a Big Thompson Canyon west of here, killing at least 58 persons.

Hundreds of survivors were ferried out by helicopter, or carried out, or led out, on Sunday. Other hundreds remained stranded today as the search for bodies continued.

These are the stories some survivors brought out with them.

Douglas Magill: "I looked out and I saw a group of people standing out in the rain, watching the river. I said, 'Honey, you'd better get dressed.'"

The Magills' trailer was parked beside a motel and campground. The Big Thompson River snaked by outside. It was climbing, fast, when Magill moved his car to higher ground, then turned around. One of three bridges near the motel collapsed.

Magill: "Then the motel office went ... then a house went ... just floating down the river. Boulders bigger than a car would be thrown up out of the water and against another boulder. They sounded like thunder and shook the ground."

Jerry Alanko, Estes Park, Colo., rescue worker: "There were cars floating by, and people inside the cars were waving flashlights for us to help them. There was nothing we could do. You just had to watch them nosedive....

"Over the bridge, people at the motel were screaming and running up the hill. Propane tanks were just hissing. You could smell it."

Alanko and his wife opened their home to victims of the rising water. Then he went out to help.

Terri Pistone, 18, Palatine, Ill., was with her family in their car: "We pulled over because of the visibility. The other people around us ... discovered both ends of the road were washed away.

"Oh, my God! The water was so high we had to run up the mountain. Then, the road started sliding into the river.

"Gas pipelines broke, and we had to put our shirts over our faces the first hour ... we had to keep moving to different sides of the mountain because it kept washing away....

"It took forever for dawn. They (others in the party) kept asking my mom what time it was on the watch. We looked over the mountain, and we saw an orange van crushed and saw parts of other cars....

"The helicopter came to the place where the campers were. The helicopter landed on the road — what road there was. They kept bringing people because there was food there and a campfire."

Several hours later, the choppers transported the Pistone family to a Loveland high school.

Hundreds of survivors of the flash flood still huddled on mountainsides today, stranded on patches of roadway and high ground, sheltered by raincoats and sleeping bags as heavy rains continued.

About 250 persons were reported injured and 40 missing, Gov. Richard Lamm said in asking President Ford for federal disaster assistance.

GOP delegate battle continues

WASHINGTON (AP) — With the Republican National Convention two weeks away, the delegate fight continues in the trenches between the political armies of President Ford and Ronald Reagan.

Although both sides boast they have enough votes lined up to ensure victory in Kansas City, most independent tallies show neither candidate with the 1,130 delegates needed but with Ford ahead and inching closer.

In the past week the battle has raged over Reagan's choice of a liberal Republican, Sen. Richard Schweiker of Pennsylvania, to be his running mate. Some conservative backers of the former California governor expressed dismay over the selection.

But on Sunday Reagan's campaign manager, John Sears, insisted the move has not backfired. "We haven't lost any delegates, not a one," said Sears on ABC's "Issues and Answers."

He promised to make an announcement today that he said would prove the Schweiker selection has enhanced Reagan's standing with GOP delegates from the Northeast. Reagan and Schweiker plan to make their first joint appearance Wednesday before Mississippi delegates in Jackson.

Schweiker himself echoed Sears' optimism on NBC's "Meet the Press," while Pennsylvania's senior senator, Hugh Scott, said Reagan's choice of a running mate was "a very fortunate thing" for Ford.

"It almost immediately cinched the nomination for him," said Scott, a Ford backer. Scott claimed the President already has 1,141 votes locked up.

Over the weekend, the latest Associated Press delegate poll showed Ford with 1,105 votes, Reagan with 1,025 and 131 uncommitted.

Time Magazine says it counts 1,126 for Ford and 1,046 for Reagan. Newsweek put Ford at 1,129 and predicted the President would have 1,166 votes by the first ballot in Kansas City.

Both Ford and Reagan spent Sunday relaxing in their respective Washington and California homes. Meanwhile, Jimmy Carter, the man they hope to beat, was proving himself the scourge of the softball field in his native Plains, Ga.

Carter, continuing a post-Democratic convention break, and his Secret Service bodyguards were taking on all comers in softball. On Sunday, with the 51-year-old Democratic nominee on the mound, they rolled up their sixth and seventh straight victories against a local black all-star squad and a media team.

Carter was meeting today with advisers to plot campaign strategy and work out a schedule. On Tuesday he travels to New Hampshire to redeem a pledge to return he made after winning the February primary there. On Wednesday he meets with the Democratic National Committee in Washington.

Ford played host at the White House last week to several GOP state delegations. Although no receptions are scheduled this week, Ford and his backers are expected to continue canvassing uncommitted votes by phone. He also will be awaiting responses to a letter he sent Saturday to all GOP delegates and alternates asking them to list their first five choices for the second spot on the ticket.

Sears said on "Issues and Answers" that Reagan chose Schweiker to give the GOP a balanced ticket that can defeat Carter and his running mate, Sen. Walter Mondale, in November.

County girl named Ohio's beef queen

Cindy Baird, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Wayne Baird, Rt. 1, Greenfield, was named as Ohio's Beef Queen Saturday at the "Ohio Beef Day" event in Caldwell, Ohio. The beef day event was sponsored by the Ohio Cattlemens Association.

Miss Baird, who served as Fayette County's beef queen during the recently-completed 1976 county fair, will reign over beef shows and activities at the Ohio State Fair in Columbus later this month.

The 17-year-old Miss Baird will be eligible to participate in the "Queen of Queens" contest this year at the Ohio State Fair. She will also work closely with the Ohio Beef Marketing Committee in promotion activities throughout the year.

Some of the promotion activities include the Ohio Beef Congress in January, and the WLW-Radio "family fun fair" in Cincinnati in March, according to John P. Gruber, Fayette County agricultural extension agent.

Miss Baird will be a senior at Miami Trace High School this fall. She is a member of the Pic-A-Fay and Wayne Progressive Farmers 4-H clubs and the area 4-H committee.

Colorado flood running down from nearby Rocky Mountain National Park churned the Big Thompson River into a wall of water 12 feet high and sent it on a 15-minute frenzy.

It tore through campsites and trailers, motels and bridges, raking a path of destruction 30 miles long. There were varying reports about whether warning was given; everyone agreed there wasn't much.

Some 500 survivors were ferried to a horse pasture-turned-helicopter pad on Sunday. Another 1,000 had to stay amid the devastation for a second night.

Officials flew over the canyon, dropping leaflets that asked survivors to signal their immediate needs: blankets stretched on the ground in the form of an "F" meant food. "W" meant water. "A" meant medical aid.

Larimer County Sheriff Robert Watson said 43 bodies were in a makeshift morgue and 15 to 20 bodies had been spotted and numbered throughout the canyon. The river had been lined with tourist cabins and motels. Many are gone now.

The Big Thompson River runs down from the heights of Rocky Mountain National Park through Estes Park, some 60 miles northwest of Denver. The Big Thompson Canyon, which runs east from Estes Park toward Loveland, was the site of the worst destruction.

The water ran off the mountain as rain also pelted the canyon itself. It funneled into the canyon, 150 yards wide at the most, between bluffs hundreds of feet high.

Claim Vietnamese 'dying like flies'

BANGKOK, Thailand (AP) — About 20 Americans and Vietnamese with American passports are believed still in Vietnam following the arrival in Bangkok of 49 Americans and dependents of Americans from Saigon.

One of the arrivals, Frederick Gulden, 54, an architect from Chicago, Ill., reported that Vietnamese who were moved out of the cities to new agricultural areas being opened up are "dying like flies" from disease and lack of medical care.

Several of the evacuees said the Communist government wants to get rid of all the several hundred foreigners still in Vietnam. Most of them are French or Vietnamese with French citizenship.

The Americans remaining include Richard Hughes, who set up a foundation to help abandoned children; Teresa Ann Reed; and two men believed in jail in Hanoi, John H. Gay and Tucker Gugelman.

Hughes and Miss Reed are expected to leave soon. Gay is believed to have been in jail for some time, while Gugelman was accused of working for the Central Intelligence Agency.

A State Department official in Washington said there also are about 16 Vietnamese-Americans or Vietnamese holding American passports who have not been allowed to leave. U.S. officials say they expect them to get out eventually.

Many of the Americans were glad to leave Vietnam; some were not.

Herman A. McDonald, 36, of San Rafael, Calif., wanted to stay. He lived like a peasant and raised pigs with his Vietnamese wife and four children on a farm in the Mekong Delta. He was ordered to leave, and no explanation was given. His family stayed behind.

"I wanted to stay in Vietnam ... to serve in any way I could, even work as a laborer," said Yee Leong Ching, a Hawaiian of Chinese descent. "I applied for citizenship but never heard from the authorities."

Gerald Posner, 26, a mailtruck driver from Brooklyn, N.Y., returned to Saigon two days before the war's end to look for a girl he met while he was a soldier, Tu Thi Nhan. He found her, brought her back with him, and told reporters, "Yes, it was worth going in and getting stuck in Saigon."

Among the others evacuated Sunday were Richard Morris Mielke, 47, a former Army sergeant who was representng a group seeking information on Americans missing in the war; Sherman H. Bennett, 39, Denver; Kerry Huebeck, 33, Ocala, Fla.; Fred Hohn Rivera, 33, Denver; Ford W. Thomasen, 56, San Mateo, Calif.; William G. Cooper, 39, Denver; William J. Smith, 27, Detroit; Maurice J. Bauhahn, 31, Grand Rapids, Mich.; and Paul Louis Horton, 32, Wilton, Conn.

Like Posner, Smith went back to find his girl friend, but he found she had married someone else.

Bauhahn, a laboratory technician at the Seventh Day Adventist Hospital in Saigon, applied for Vietnamese citizenship but was turned down.

The group included 14 Vietnamese women, most of them wives of Americans, and 12 children.

Scientists ponder Mars oxygen data

PASADENA, Calif. (AP) — Information that may — or may not — point to the existence of life on Mars continues to pour in from Viking 1. Scientists are trying to figure out just what it means.

Viking scientists said Sunday that the data, including an unexpected abundance of oxygen in one of Viking's life-seeking probes, might be signs of Martian life. But they also said nonliving chemical agents — such as peroxide crystals — could be causing the reactions.

"It would just be silly of us to say we know what the data means," said Dr. Gerald Soffen, chief Viking scientist.

What excited scientists over the weekend was the discovery in one of the experiments of 15 times the amount of oxygen they had expected. They said the oxygen could be evidence of living systems but that any number of chemical processes could also explain its presence.

"They (the biologists) are wracking their brains trying to decipher the information," said one mission spokesman.

The results of another experiment, called a labeled release, also could be interpreted as a hint of Martian microorganisms, but scientists were trying to rule out every other conceivable explanation before making such a claim. Dr. Harold Klein, head of Viking's biologist team, said there were "many — very, very many" such possible explanations.

The labeled release experiment is based on the assumption that any Martian life would probably eat, digest and release wastes — to metabolize — in some way similar to living creatures.

In the experiment, the Viking robot places a small bit of Martian soil into a test cell, where it is moistened with a bit of "chicken soup" — a mix of nutrients.

The nutrients are dosed with a radioactive tracer material — carbon 14. If any creatures in the soil eat the nutrients, and if they act like earth creatures, they would give off the tracer material in gaseous wastes, and a tiny Geiger counter in the probe could detect it in the cell's atmosphere.

Therein lies the hitch.

Scientists found an abundance of the tracer material in gases in the cell — more, in fact, than was given off by earth micro-organisms when the experiment was run as a test. If there are Martian organisms, said Dr. Harold Klein, they are "more highly developed, more intense than microbial life (living systems too small to be seen by the eye) on earth."

But any number of chemical actions, including some like a fizzing antacid tablet dropped into a glass of water, may be causing the high level of gases. Some scientists think peroxide crystals are present in the Martian soil, and they would almost certainly act up like the antacid tablet when coming in contact with the moist nutrient mix.

More data is scheduled to be gathered and transmitted this week, including that from a light test seeking Martian systems that are capable of photosynthesis — the process by which plants take in carbon dioxide and produce oxygen.

Congress takes up defense, tax bills

WASHINGTON (AP) — Defense spending, clean air, postcard voter registration and taxes will be issues before Congress this week.

The Senate today takes up a $104-billion defense budget for fiscal 1977, with a prohibition against any spending for production of the new supersonic B1 bomber until next Feb. 1.

The delay in placing initial orders for the first three B1 bombers until after inauguration day Jan. 20 is designed to permit the new president, whoever he may be, to review the latest test flight data and determine whether it is worthwhile to embark on a 244-plane fleet at a cost of $22 billion.

The House has voted twice against any delay in the B1 program, so the issue faces uncertainty in a House-Senate conference if the postponement is approved by the Senate.

The $104 billion recommended by the Senate Appropriations Committee for the Pentagon's new budget is $3.9 billion under President Ford's request and $1.4 billion less than approved by the House earlier.

Final votes are expected Thursday in the House and Senate on legislation that both broadens and weakens the Clean Air Act of 1970.

The Senate has set a vote for Tuesday on amendments by Sens. Frank Moss, D-Utah, and William L. Scott, R-Va., to eliminate a proposal requiring that states restrict industrial development in zones that now enjoy clean air, to prevent significant increases in air pollution.

Both bills in House and Senate would give auto makers two additional years, until 1980 models, to comply fully with emission control standards now required by law for 1978 models.

The delay is designed to allow more time to develop technology that will both control emissions and reduce fuel consumption.

At the personal urging of Jimmy Carter, the Democratic presidential nominee, the House is to take up Tuesday a bill to authorize voter registration in federal elections by mailing postcards that would be widely distributed through the Postal Service.

The bill faces Republican opposition in Congress, and Democrats foresee a veto by President Ford if it is enacted.

On Thursday, the House is to consider a bill to authorize annual federal payments in lieu of taxes to local governments for federal lands — national parks, forests, wilderness, water projects and public domain — located within their tax jurisdictions. The bill would mean $117 million in additional revenue next year for about 1,000 local governmental units in 48 states.

Tanaka driver commits suicide

TOKYO (AP) — A driver for jailed former Prime Minister Kakuei Tanaka was found dead in his car today, an apparent suicide, police said.

Investigators of the Lockheed Aircraft payoffs in Japan said they had questioned the dead man — Masanori Kasahara, 42 — on Saturday and Sunday.

The body of Kasahara, a driver for Tanaka since 1966, was found on a mountain road in Saitama prefecture (state), northwest of Tokyo. Police said death was caused by exhaust gas Kasahara apparently piped into the car with a vinyl hose.

Tanaka, prime minister from July 1972 to December 1974, was arrested last Tuesday on charges of violating the foreign exchange control law by receiving $1.7 million in Lockheed money from the former chairman of Maurbeni Corp., Lockheed's former sales agent in Japan. So far, he is the only Japanese politician arrested in the Lockheed case.

Conrail does well, Bowen aide says

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — The Consolidated Rail Corporation (ConRail) is doing well in Indiana, says an aide to Gov. Otis R. Bowen.

William J. Watt, who handles rail matters for the governor, said ConRail already has replaced 230,000 ties and made major improvements on 448 miles of track.

ConRail went into effect in April, taking over seven bankrupt railroads in 18 Eastern and Midwestern states that were losing over $1 million a day.

"If the first four months are any indication, ConRail will succeed in in turning around what had been a disastrous, deteriorating railroad system in Indiana," Watt said.

Conrail took over 2,150 miles of track in Indiana. The figure is about two-thirds of all the railroad track in the state.

Man divorces because of love

WHITING, Ind. (AP) — A Whiting man says he is divorcing his wife because he loves her.

The man, identified only as Kurt, says his wife, Karen, is paralyzed and in a nursing home and he doesn't have enough money to pay the bills.

Kurt says he cannot afford to support the couple's three teenagers and pay the bills and the state won't help. A divorce, he says, will force the state to take care of her.

Lake Superior Court Judge Robert Berger said the idea is ridiculous and ordered the county Welfare Department to treat married persons the same as unmarried ones.

barns as the 1976 Fayette County Fair became just a pleasant memory.

MIKE WALTERS of New Holland survived the longest and won Saturday's feature demolition derby event at the Fayette County Fair.

Walters' car placed third in the evening's first heat behind Dan Armbrust and Don Mongold both from Washington C.H. Mongold came back to take second place in the feature event.

George Allen of Washington C.H. won the second heat as three drivers shared second and third place money. Paul Mitchel, Washington C.H.; James Moore, Washington C.H.; and Dale Evans, Jeffersonville, all stalled at the same time and could not restart their cars.

Allen's car also stalled, but he was able to restart his vehicle and make the last contact.

Raymond Frazier won the third heat while Mike Mitchell and Bucky Trout finished second and third respectively. All three drivers are from Washington C.H.

GOP delegates

"Mr. Schweiker is a quite formidable candidate ... because his constituencies happen to be those that the Republicans definitely need to crack into in the fall in order to beat Carter and Mondale," Sears said.

Both Sears and Schweiker said that despite being in office for two years, Ford has failed to establish a constituency at any end of the political spectrum.

"Mr. Ford's problem is that nobody in this country seems to know exactly what he stands for," said Sears.

Schweiker, in response to a question, said he had no intention of withdrawing as Reagan's running mate.

"I have never quit under fire in my life. I wouldn't quit now," he responded. Schweiker said that in a personal appearance he showed South Carolina delegates "that I didn't have horns, and when I left they did issue a statement saying there were standing solidly behind Gov. Reagan."

On Sunday the New York state convention of Young Americans for Freedom endorsed Reagan, although its chairman, Robert Heckman, said, "Frankly, we are extremely disappointed in the selection of the Republican party's most outspoken liberal as a running mate for Mr. Reagan."

Stock list advances

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market advanced broadly today, drawing support from the continued spread of a prime rate cut in the banking industry.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrial stocks gained more than a point in the early going, and advances took a 2-1 lead over declines in the overall tally of New York Stock Exchange-listed issues.

Analysts noted that the market had developed some upward momentum in its moderate rally on friday.

They said it got a boost when a prime rate reduction from 7¼ to 7 per cent, begun last week by a few major banks, was matched by numerous others this morning.

R. R. Donnelly, the early volume leader, picked up ¼ to 21 in a 151,300-share block trade.

On Friday the Dow Jones industrial average rose 5.35 to 984.64.

New Harris trial dispute flares up

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The prosecution in the William and Emily Harris trail is considering asking that jury deliberations be halted until a controversy surrounding the judge is resolved.

The defense centends Superior Court Judge Mark Brandler is guilty of misconduct for failing to tell attorneys that he had been told some jurors might be biased against the Harrises.

A hearing on the controversy was scheduled to resume today. So were jury deliberations, which had recessed over the weekend.

Chief Deputy Dist. Atty. Stephen Trott said Sunday that "we are considering asking the judge" to suspend jury deliberations when the hearing reopens. Brandler has indicated he wants jurors to proceed to a verdict on the 11 charges of kidnaping, robbery and assault.

The Harrises are accused in an escape from a Los Angeles sporting goods store where Harris was reportedly caught shoplifting. Patricia Hearst, a codefendant scheduled to be tried later, has said she fired a machine gun to cover Harris' escape. She and the Harrises also are charged with commandeering a van and kidnaping its young driver.

Trott entered the case after a series of revelations last week which sharpened the controversy. The jury, sequestered at a hotel, has been insulated from the reports.

Protection for a temple

The badly deteriorated little Ionic temple called the Erectheum, which has stood on the Acropolis at Athens for 2,400 years, is to be moved to a museum. The ravaging effects of air pollution have made this necessary.

The project tells us something about the nature of our civilization - something bad, something good. It is a sad truth that modern, industrialized society has brought conditions harmful to statuary and buildings of cherished beauty; the effects of this can be seen not only in Athens but also in many other cities as well. Yet there is a saving grace in society's reaction to all this.

The polluted atmosphere bathing the Erectheum in recent years has done as much damage, no doubt, as was done by many centuries of wind and weather. It is the society whose machines and smokestacks have created the pollution, though, which now seeks to protect the ancient temple from further damage.

This and additional undertakings to safeguard the Parthenon and other glories of the Acropolis are being carried out under the joint auspices of the Greek government and the United Nations Educational, Scientific and Cultural Organization. It is not a happy thing that the Erectheum must be removed to an air-conditioned museum and enveloped in tansparent plastic. Still, that is better than seeing it destroyed by airborne pollutants - and it is gratifying that modern society is concerned enough to take protective measures.

WASHINGTON CALLING....By Marquis Childs

Cheers for Viking I

WASHINGTON — All the troubles on planet earth seemed reduced to trivia by the triumph of Viking I. It makes one American want to stand up and cheer for the fantastic knowledge that went into the exploration of Planet Mars 213,000,000 miles away.

To me it seems more dramatic than walking on the moon. For here is a mechanical device with a nuclear power plant responding to the directions of earthlings attuned to every impulse of the fantastic machine they put together and launched on its year-long journey through space.

Science fiction sounds nonsensical alongside the achievements of Viking and its masters. The business of the scoop to pick up Martian soil that got stuck and how it got unstuck was drama of the highest order. The pictures being sent back showed the technicians in the control center at Pasadena where a pin had fallen on the ground and they could make the adjustment so the 10-foot-long scoop would work as planned.

Yes, 213,000,000 miles away. Think of that, if you're like me quite unmechanical, trying to put a screw in a storm door or repair an unruly light fixture.

A long time ago — it seems several aeons — Sherman Adams in the Eisenhower administration derided the idea of taking part in an outer space basketball game.

That was in 1957 when the world was thunderstruck by the first Sputnik the Soviets sent into orbit around the earch. The United States was caught unawares by this Russian first which exceeded in weight and orbital capacity a projected American satellite.

Whether there is life on Mars is irrelevant. The science fiction myth of those little people with green heads and long antennae will be dispelled. That Viking can analyze the Martian atmosphere and the Martian soil to determine whether life, of however low an order, exists or could ever have existed is the miracle.

Viking II is due to land on September 7. A more difficult and rocky terrain has been selected for exploration with the hope that a soft landing will be as successful as with the first Viking.

The cost of Vikings I and II is small compared to that of the moon walk. It comes out to an almost even $1 billion. This covers construction, launching and the analyses at Pasadena. Just by way of comparison the cost of a B-1 bomber is $87 million and the overall program is estimated at $22 billion.

The cost of a single Trident submarine is more that $1.5 billion, with an overall cost of $18.5 billion for the entire program. Trident, the most expensive weapon in the American arsenal, may be nudged out by the newest aircraft carrier, which is likely to come in at $2 billion plus without planes.

But money is hardly a measure of the science and technology, the dedicated effort of so many individuals, that went into the achievement of the Vikings. It is part of the genius of America that, for all the follies and mishaps of the past, is reason for pride on this 200th anniversary of nationhood.

If the troubles that plague Planet Earth can be contained, Viking I is proof that there are no limits to the discoveries that lie ahead. Of course there is life, and perhaps advanced life, on planets in the outer reaches of space still beyond the resources of earthlings. We are not alone. The performance of Viking and the potential for the future are one reason this is a thrilling moment in man's troubled history.

The troubles here on planet earth are certainly grave. The blind instinct of homo sapiens for the reckless destruction of his environment is a principal source of trouble. (Imagine if there were sentient beings on Mars or a nearby planet and they had sent their own Viking for a soft landing on, say, one of the industrial wastelands near New York City; the report on atmosphere and soil pollution would be davastating.) And the same science and technology that sent Viking to Mars has created a means of instant button-pushing destruction of all that is most treasured and, possibly, of human life itself.

While no one would give odds for the survival of Planet Earth for the next hundred years, today we can stand up and cheer for a superb triumph. It is proof that this science and technology put to peaceful use knows no bounds.

Blanchester danger over

BLANCHESTER, Ohio (AP) — Some 200 to 300 residents who left their homes early Sunday when 10 cars of a B&O freight train derailed were back in their beds late Sunday as two potentially dangerous tank cars had been righted.

Those two cars contained ethylene oxide, described by Chessie System spokesman Tom Johnson as toxic and flammable. There was no leakage, he said.

Police had warned persons near the derailment of the potential danger and urged them to spend the day elsewhere, but there was no formal evacuation, Johnson said. Authorities said about 200-300 persons left their homes.

The derailment occurred as the 83-car freight was passing through Blanchester from Cincinnati on its way to Chillicothe, Johnson said.

The other eight cars which left the tracks contained steel, aluminum and miscellaneous nondangerous products, Johnson said.

Johnson reported that the cars were back on the tracks about 9:30 p.m. Sunday night and residents started returning home immediately. Damage estimates from the derailment were listed at about $50,000. There were no injuries reported.

Coal-burning order to have little effect

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — The Federal Energy Administration's new orders requiring that only coal be burned in new power plants will probably not mean additional charges to Ohio fuel users, a state official said.

The order affects 30 plants planned in 17 states, including Ohio.

A spokesman for the state Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) said the economic impact will hit those living in the Atlantic coastal states. Power plants there will have to convert from other fuels and the cost of rail lines, barges and other coal-handling facilities, he said, will have to be picked up by the consumer.

There are four Ohio plants affected by the ruling—the City of Painesville owns one plant, Cincinnati Gas & Electric Co. owns another, and also jointly owns two plants with the Dayton Power & Light Co.

The FEA said all plants have coal-burning capability anyway, but the order would prevent use of natural gas or oil to fire the plants.

A year ago the FEA proposed the requirement for an additional 44 power plants, but an agency official said those are still under review.

The intent of the requirement is to save on dwindling supplies of oil and gas and to boost the use of coal, said Frank Zarb, EPA administrator.

In addition, the FEA said preliminary notices have been sent to 48 other power plants on the drawing boards in 22 states stating that orders will be issued requiring that they burn coal.

Exactly when the orders will go into effect is unknown. Edward Rodzinak, an attorney for Region 5 of the U.S. EPA in Cincinnati, said it will probably take at least three to four years for plants to make the switch. Rodzinak said the EPA must work closely with the FEA to make a definite determination.

The environmental impact of the latest order will not significantly affect Ohio, said Jack Wunderle of the state EPA air pollution division. All Ohio plants were originally coal burners, Wunderle said, so pollution should not rise in the state because of the FEA order.

Dear Abby:

ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

Separate bedrooms until they're wed

DEAR ABBY: Regarding your advice to those squares in Illinois who refused to allow their divorced 30-year-old son to sleep with girlfriend when they visited, but sent them off to a motel: Abby, your advice is Victorian.

We also have a divorced son, age 30. Because he is very much in love with a very sweet girl, whom we would be thrilled to have as our daughter-in-law, they sleep together whenever they visit us. Inasmuch as they live together in the city where they work, it would be rank hypocrisy for us to insist that they sleep apart in our home.

Abby, you and those Illinois parents are too concerned with appearances and what people will think! Why don't you either advance into the 20th century or retire?

SENSIBLE IN SAN DIEGO

DEAR SENSIBLE: I'm "advanced" enough for most people, and have no intentions of retiring. I deny the charge that I am concerned with appearances and what people will think. If no one knew it but myself, I still would not approve of my unmarried (though adult)) children sleeping with their lovers in my home.

DEAR ABBY: I have a 21-year-old college educated daughter who went to live with a young man about a year ago. At the time, he had no job, and I can only assume that my daughter, who has a job, has been supporting him.

I am 48 and a widow. I live in a home that's much too large for me, and I have a chance to sell it and relocate in Florida, a part of the country I love. It offers me a new life, and I would like to make the move, but would I be deserting my daughter?

Perhaps I should remain here in Connecticut in case she needs me. I told her if I moved to Florida and she wanted to join me, I would send her money.

I worry about her, Abby. Should I start a new life in Florida? Or stay near my daughter in case she needs me and is too proud to ask?

ALWAYS A MOTHER

DEAR ALWAYS: Move to Florida, and don't worry about your daughter. You will not be "deserting" her she made her choice when she moved in with the young man. Don't worry, if she needs you, she'll let you know.

DEAR ABBY: My husband and I are having a difference of opinion and need you to settle it.

If you send out R.S.V.P. invitations for a party and several people did not respond one way or the other, would you assume that they WERE coming or were NOT coming?

SPLIT OPINIONS

DEAR SPLIT: I wouldn't prepare to entertain those who didn't respond. And the only assumption I would make is they they have very poor manners. (P.S. Some invitations request "regrets only," which seems to simplify matters.)

Mr. and Mrs. Gary W. Hollar

Osborne-Hollar wed

The White Oak Grove Methodist Church was the setting on Saturday, July 3, at 7:30 p.m. for the marriage of Jewel Elaine Osborne and Gary Wayne Hollar. The church in which the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Donald Osborne and the son of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Hollar were married was decorated with standards of glads and snapdragons with greenery and the family pews were marked with white bows.

A personal friend of the bride, the Rev. Harold Shackelford, Minister of the Church of Christ, Harrison, officiated at the double ring ceremony which was preceded by a half hour of bridal music by Mrs. Mrs. John Rhoads and Ms. Sandy Rhoads.

The fathers of the bride and groom entered the church each carrying a lighted candle, which they placed in the candelabra. After the wedding vows were repeated, the bride and groom lighted another candle, symbolic of the uniting of the two families.

Ms. Osborne, who was given in marriage by her mother and father, was escorted to the altar on the arm of her father. She was wearing a gown of nylon dotted swiss over taffeta. The gown featured an empire waistline, stand-up collar, bodice and a square pinafore biband with deep flounce hem edged with wide bands of Cluny lace. The bishop sleeves, with wide inserts of lace, were gathered at the wrists with matching lace cuffs. Her chapel mantilla was made of layers of silk illusion caught to a coronet. The long train was edged in lace. She carried a colonial bouquet of pastel daisies, carnations and baby's breath, enhanced with a shower of white ribbons with lovers knots.

Mrs. Carolyn Carson was matron of honor for Ms. Osborne. She wore a floor length gown of green dotted swiss with white lace trim and a cape of matching material. She wore a pearl necklace, a gift from the bride, and a corsage of white carnations with a green bow.

Ms. Chris Caldwell, of Greenfield, and Ms. Marcia Markel, were the bridesmaids. Their gowns were identical to that of the matron of honor, with Ms. Markel wearing yellow and Ms. Caldwell wearing blue. Each wore pearl necklaces, gifts from the bride, and white carnations corsages with bows matching their gowns, completed their ensemble.

Ms. Jo Lynn Hollar, only sister of the groom, presided at the guest book.

Michael Morris served as best man for Mr. Hollar and ushers were David and Chester Hollar, brothers of the groom.

Mrs. Osborne, mother of the bride, wore a floor length gown of ice blue silk over taffeta with long sleeves and high neck. She completed the ensemble with white assessories and a corsage of white carnations. Mrs. Hollar, mother of the groom, wore a floor length gown of red crepe with long sleeves and V-neckline. She wore white assessories and a corsage of white carnations.

The reception, catered by Maxine Gilmerr, was held in the chuch immediately following the ceremony. The bride's table was covered with a white linen cloth. A three-tiered cake, surrounded by greenery and assorted daisies, was placed in the center of the table and small vases of assorted carnations and greenery, with assorted pastel bows, were placed on each end of the table.

Hostesses for the reception were Mrs. Cinda Slager, Mrs. Bevan Eggleston, Mrs. Karen Justice, Mrs. Donna Kimball and Mrs. Tom Mongold.

Guests at the wedding and reception were from Columbus, Greenfield, Clarksville, Sabina, Wilmington, Hillsboro, Blanchester, Harrison and New Albany.

The bride, who is a 1976 graduate of Washington Senior High School, is employed at Sun Plastics, Jeffersonville. The groom, a 1975 graduate of Washington Senior High School, is employed by Federal Glass, Columbus. Both attended Laurel Oaks Vocational School.

The couple will reside at 195 Woodsview Drive, Apt. C, Jeffersonville.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Hollar entertained the wedding party with a rehearsal dinner at Anderson's Restaurant the night preceding the wedding.

PUFF CAPE is worn over bias-cut gown in a muted blue-green print.

IF APHRODITE, goddess of love, were still a reigning belle, you can bet she'd order her gowns from Stavropoulos. His elegant feminine fashions make a woman a standout at a party. Even if you can't afford his creations, you can adapt his ideas, and make a grand extrance when you step out.

With Stavropoulos, color is important. Because he believes clothes should not wear the woman, he likes working with pale shades. His prints are never splashy but are done in muted shades, or brights on white or pastel grounds. It's no surprise that his favorite fabric, chiffon, is also one of the most flattering. Stavropoulos realizes arms aren't always a woman's best feature, so he often covers arms with sleeves, or with the addition of a short chiffon cape or a full-length chiffon coat.

Home Decor Completed By Bookshelves

By JOAN O'SULLIVAN

HOMES THAT are bare of books always surprise me. They don't look lived in. Most people like to read, and how can you read without collecting favorite volumes? You can't! As these questions indicate, book collecting presents decorating problems.

Sharing Shelf Space

Dear Joan:
I have a bookshelf that's 6 feet high by 4 feet wide. The individual shelves are varying heights to accommodate different size books. Do you think I should use the shelves for books only, or would a combination of books and bric-a-brac look more decorative?
—A.G.

Dear A.G.
I like shelves that hold books as well as decorative accessories, provided the accessories are given room to shine. Vases, statues, and other bibelots need space. Don't crowd them in too close to books.

But I also like shelves crammed full of favorite books that, like old friends, I can't bear to discard.

It you have enough shelf space, show off your accessories. But if it means throwing out books you really love, forget it.

Cookbook Collection

Dear Joan:
Any suggestions on where to store a growing cookbook collection? It has to be someplace where they're handy for quick reference. ——P.C.

Dear P.C.:
I can't resist cookbooks, either. The four books that are my standard reference volumes sit between bookends atop the refrigerator. Other often-used cookbooks share the kitchen window sill with an avocado plant.

One of my friends shelved her cookbooks above the kitchen window and above the kitchen door. She uses a step stool to reach them.

Directory Assistance

Dear Joan:
My telephone is in the entry foyer, which opens on our living room. I can't figure out where to keep telephone directories so they'll be handy, but not obstrusive. Have any ideas?—R.P.
Dear R.P.:

Store telephone directories close to the telephone: on the bottom shelf of a serving cart; on an end table shelf; on a close-to-the-phone bookshelf. If you're a do-it-yourselfer, build a telephone table of Plexiglas or wood, with pockets at the base (see the photograph above) to hold directories.

Anderson-Terrell vows exchanged

MR. AND MRS. BRIAN J. TERRELL

Carol E. Anderson, of Columbus, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harold E. Anderson, of Sabina, and Brian J. Terrell, of Columbus, son of Mr. and Mrs. James A. Terrell, of New Vienna, were united in marriage during a double ring ceremony held at 2:30 p.m., July 31, in the Sabina Methodist Church. The Rev. Lester J. Watts officiated at the afternoon wedding of the grand-daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Russell Knapp, of Washington C.H.

The altar was decorated with white roses, gladiolas, and poms, and was accentuated by two seven-branch candelbras on each side. Norma Lee Davis accompanied soloist, Arnold Apple, on the organ. Ms. Beverly Garber presided at the guest book.

The bride, who was escorted to the altar by her father, wore a white gown of quiana, with a sashed empire waist, and V-neckline with cape collar. The fitted sleeves were trimmed in ruffles at the wrist and the A-line skirt had a flounce at the hemline which trailed into a chapel-length train. Ms. Anderson's veil was a finger-tip mantilla of silk illusion, edged with Venise lace. Her bouquet was of miniature carnations and baby's breath.

Maid of honor for Ms. Anderson was Stacy [illegible]le, of Wilmington, who wore a sleeveless A-line gown in mint green jersey knit, with scoop-neckline and cape collar. The bridesmaids were Catherine Anderson, sister of the bride, Debra Stewart, of Columbus, and Susan Terrell, sister of the groom. All wore dresses identical to that of the honor attendant, and each carried a single white rose.

Best man for the groom was James Mandrell, of Columbus. Ushers were Jonathan Terrell, of Columbus, Sam Terrell, of New Vienna, both brothers of the groom, and Jack Anderson, of Sabina, brother of the bride.

The bride's mother wore a green quiana knit sleeveless gown, and the groom's mother wore a coral knit gown with chiffon sleeves. Both mothers wore corsages of Minuet sweetheart roses.

Following the wedding ceremony, a reception was held in the church's social room. Hostesses were Jane Anderson, sister of the bride, Mrs. Mark O'Flynn, cousin of the bride, Pam Smith, of Columbus, and Mrs. Howard Dyke, of Columbus.

The newlyweds are honeymooning in the midwest and will be residing at 411 Buttles, Apt. H, in Columbus, when they return from their trip. The bride, who graduated from East Clinton High School, is employed by The Ohio State University, as a secretary-receptionist. The groom, a graduate of Westtown School, Westtown, Pa., and Columbus Technical School, received his bachelor's of education degree from Ohio University, and his master's degree in education from Ohio State University. He is employed in the Columbus School System.

Those from Washington C.H. attending the wedding were Mr. and Mrs. Donald Moore, Mr. and Mrs. Gary Kirkpatrick, and sons, Kevin and Kelly, Mr. and Mrs. Mark O'Flynn, and children, Shawn and Beth, and Mr. and Mrs. Fred Slaven, and daughter, Lenora.

Copycat recipe-Jewish rye bread

By CECILY BROWNSTONE
Associated Press Food Editor

DEAR CECILY: Years ago my husband lived in New York City and once in a while he yearns for the Jewish sour rye bread he learned to enjoy there. He and some friends used to buy it from a small bakery where it was baked every day. They would bring it home, slice it, spread it with sweet butter and gobble it up while it was wonderfully fresh and crusty. If you can recommend a recipe, I'd like to try baking. — RETIRED.

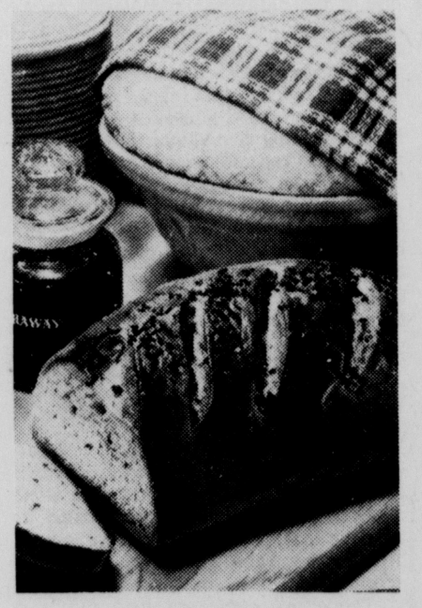

DEAR RETIRED: The following recipe for Jewish sour rye bread is as delicious as the best you can buy. My tasters weren't a bit sorry the recipe makes three loaves! — C.B.

JEWISH RYE BREAD

2 packages active dry yeast
1½ cups warm (105 to 115 degrees) water
2 cups medium rye flour
1 cup room temperature beer, measured after foam subsides
1 tablespoon sugar
3 tablespoons caraway seed
1 tablespoon salt
6½ cups (about) unbleached white flour
2 eggs
3 tablespoons vegetable shortening

In a medium mixing bowl stir 1 package of the yeast into the warm water until dissolved. Add the rye flour; stir together well although mixture does not have to be smooth. Cover bowl tightly with plastic wrap. Let stand at room temperature (68 to 72 degrees) for 3 days and 3 nights. This provides the "starter."

On the fourth day pour the starter into the large bowl of an electric mixer. Add the remaining yeast and the beer; stir together well. Stir in the sugar, 2 tablespoons of the caraway seed the salt, 2 cups of the white flour and one of the eggs; beat at moderate speed until smooth—about 2 minutes. Add shortening; beat at high speed for 2 minutes. With a wooden spoon work in enough of the remaining white flour (about 4 cups) to make a soft dough.

Turn out on a lightly floured surface; knead, working in the remaining white flour (about ½ cup) until smooth and elastic — 5 to 10 minutes. Place in a greased bowl; turn to grease top; cover with plastic wrap. Let rise in a warm draft-free place (about 80 degrees) until doubled — about one hour. Punch down dough.

Turn out onto a lightly floured surface. Cut into 3 equal parts. With a floured rolling pin roll out one part to a 12 by 8 inch rectangle; sprinkle with 1 teaspoon of the remaining caraway seed. Starting from the 8-inch side, roll up dough tightly and pinch "seam" to seal. Tuck ends under. Roll out and shape remaining two parts the same way. Place two of the loaves seamside down well apart on a lightly greased large cookie sheet; place the other loaf on a lightly greased small cookie sheet. Cover and let rise as previously until doubled — about 45 minutes.

Slash top of each loaf diagonally in 3 or 4 equidistant places. In a small mixing bowl lightly beat remaining egg with 1 tablespoon of water. With a pastry brush, brush tops and sides of loaves with the egg wash, being careful to add just a little at a time so it does not run down onto the pan. (Excess egg wash may be frozen and used another time.) Sprinkle loaves with extra caraway seed.

Bake in a preheated 375-degree oven until browned and bread sounds hollow when tapped with fingers — 35 to 45 minutes. Place on wire racks to cool; delicious served while still faintly warm.

To store overnight, place in a brown paper bag and fold over top several times, securing with paper clips. Plastic bags soften the crust. For longer storage, wrap appropriately and freeze.

Top rams up for sale

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Some of the top rams in Ohio will be on display and up for sale Friday in the Ohio Ram Test Program sale at the Eastern Ohio Resource and Development Center near Belle Valley.

The sale begins at 6 p.m. Friday following Sheep Day, which will feature an explanation of how the test rams were fed and managed during their test.

Some of the rams have been gaining over one pound a day during the test period and one was gaining 1.5 pounds a day. Comparing this growth rate with cattle, a 600-pound bull would have to gain 15 pounds a day to match the performance of some of the rams.

Rams to be sold at the auction will be selected on the basis of average daily gain while on test. Only the top 75 per cent of each breed will be sold after being screened for soundness. Performance data will be avaliable for all rams in the sale.

About 65 rams will be sold, including Columbia, Corriedale, Dorset, Finn, Hampshire, Montadald, Oxford, Shropshire, Southdown, Suffolk and Targhee breeds.

WASHINGTON REPORT

From

WILLIAM H. HARSHA

Representative To Congress
6th District, Ohio

Congress has failed badly on its obligation to American consumers by permitting deregulation of prices on middle distillate fuel oil, including home heating oil, diesel fuels, and kerosene.

Without evaluating or debating the highly suspect fuel oil demand estimates presented by the Federal Energy Adminstration as justification for removing price controls in fuel oil, Congress recently allowed restraints to expire.

The supply and demand setting is right for an increase in heating oil prices, now that controls have lapsed. Middle distillate stocks are at a low level despite the unseasonably warm temperatures which generally prevailed during the past winter.

The picture is further clouded by the anticipated shortage in natural gas supplies, as forecast by the Federal Power Commission. Since middle distillates also serve as a substitute for natural gas, demands on this fuel oil would be even greater during a natural gas shortage.

If demand is forecasted to exceed potential supplies, increases in the domestic price for fuel oil will rise to the prevailing world price, now set by the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries (OPEC).

The most recent FEA figures show that the uncontrolled world price is 8 cents higher than the controlled domestic price. Therefore, if demand exceeds supply— and it almost certainly will—the price of essential home heating oils and diesel fuels could rise by as much as 20 per cent. An 8-cent increase could raise the average heating bill by $120. Even a 1-cent hike would raise the bill by $16.

Homeowners, truckers, farmers, and small businessmen could will be paying a much higher price next winter because Congress let FEA remove the lid. As always, those hit hardest by this jump in home heating costs will be the elderly, the poor, and those who are on fixed incomes.

With little regard for the 17 million homes that use heating oil, a majority in congress became willing partners to the guessing game staged by the Federal Energy Administration. Between June 15 and June 25, that agency transmitted three different sets of demand projection figures to Congress.

Although obviously certain of nothing, FEA officials appeared ready to promise anything to get Congressional approval for decontrol of heating oil prices. They were successful despite estimates that a 1-cent increase in the price of distillates would involve a $490 million addition to consumer prices and a one per cent increase in unemployment, or more than 130,000 fewer jobs.

An increase to world market level prices would transfer about $4 billion a year from consumers' pocketbooks to the oil industry. Most of this price increase would be trapped at the marketing and refining levels. Since it would not flow to producers to obtain greater supplies, the increase would be almost totally inflationary.

The major oil refiners, which produce over 80 percent of the total petroleum products in this country, are now free to charge anything they want. They will not have to worry about controls on the price of crude oil, because consumers don't buy crude oil. They buy middle distillates, gasoline, and other products. Thus, the major oil refineries can simply drain off their profits at the point of product prices.

I voted for House consideration of this matter, and in effect, against lifting controls on middle distillate prices. Consumers have for too long been victimized by this nation's major oil companies and their protectors in certain federal agencies.

Despite their frequently erroneous and misleading figures on reserves and projections, the oil producers are gradually getting the decontrol they seek. Middle distillates are not the last targets. Another attempt to decontrol gasoline prices will be next.

While all else in the American energy picture seems to change from time to time, the real victim remains the same—the American consumer.

More aftershocks shaking China

TOKYO (A) — Foreign residents left Peking and Tientsin today for places of safety as the Chinese government reported 110 aftershocks — an average of nearly five an hour — in the devastated Tangshan area.

The aftershocks Saturday night and Sunday, combined with such other indications as nervous behavior of animals in the Peking Zoo, prompted new warnings from Chinese seismologists that a new major quake was imminent. It was the third such warning since Friday.

David Dean, deputy chief of the U.S. Liaison Office in Peking, said 18 wives and eight children of members of the American staff were leaving today, but there were no plans yet to evacuate any of the 31 staff members.

The British Embassy sent 50 dependents off Sunday. Planes leaving the Chinese capital were booked to capacity for the next few days with families of diplomats bound for Canton, Hong Kong or Tokyo.

The diplomats themselves and other foreigners joined millions of Chinese camping outside, away from big buildings.

Japanese correspondents in Peking said the Foreign Ministry's information bureau reported 110 aftershocks between 6 p.m. Saturday and 6 p.m. Sunday. It said all registered at least four on the Richter Scale, and 15 registered more than five.

The first quake early Wednesday registered 8.2 on the Richter Scale, the highest reading recorded in the world since the Alaska quake in 1964. It devastated the heavily populated Tangshan area 100 miles east-southeast of Peking, caused widespread damage in Tientsin, China's third largest city 40 miles south of Tangshan, and did lesser damage in the capital.

A second quake about 15 hours later registered 7.9 on the Richter Scale.

The Richter scale is a measure of ground motion as recorded on seismographs. In populated areas, an earthquake of 4.0 on the Richter scale can cause moderate damage, 5.0 considerable damage, 6.0 can be severe. A reading of 7 is a major earthquake, capable of widespread, heavy damage; 8 is a "great" earthquake, capable of tremendous damage. The San Francisco earthquake of 1906 registered 8.3 on the Richter scale.

Though the Chinese have not reported the number of casualties, tens of thousands are believed to have died in Tangshan, a coal mining and industrial city of 1.6 million.

There was speculation that thousands of miners might have been trapped.

OSMA plans insurance for doctors

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — In an effort to short-circuit skyrocketing medical malpractice insurance costs, the Ohio State Medical Association has voted to form a professional liability insurance company, a spokesman said Sunday.

The medical association, which represents about 11,000 of Ohio's 15,000 physicians, will sell insurance directly to members, rather than through agents, said Charles Edgar, public relations director.

That method alone could cut premium costs as much as 20 per cent by eliminating overhead costs, he said.

The plan to set up the independent company was approved by the association's House of Delegates at a special session in Columbus. The association hopes to have it in operation by Nov. 1.

"We hope we can get away from the tremendous increases in insurance premiums," said Edgar. "We plan to make liability insurance available because professional insurance companies are withdrawing from the market."

The association is affiliated with the American Medical Association.

Although there have been dramatic increases in malpractice insurance rates in Ohio, Edgar said the independent group is a result of several years of planning and study. He added, however, that some doctors have experienced 300 per cent increases in insurance rates in a one-year period.

"The association is deeply concerned about this also because of the impact on the cost of medical care," Edgar said.

Farm commodities prices hold steady

WASHINGTON (AP) — Farm prices of commodities on the average held steady last month as gains for some items, namely soybeans and cotton, offset declines for meat animals, according to the Agriculture Department.

Officials said Friday that during the month that ended July 15 cattle prices declined further, leading the drop in the meat animal index. Farm prices overall had risen 2 per cent in April, 1.5 per cent in May and 2 per cent in June after dropping 1.5 per cent last March.

As of July 15 the farm price index averaged 2.5 per cent above the year earlier. Prices farmers paid to meet expense, meanwhile, also were unchanged from mid-June, but were up 7 per cent from July 15, 1975.

Corn, at $2.82 a bushel, was up eight cents from June and 10 cents from a year earlier. Hay declined 60 cents to $59 a ton, but that was still $7.80 more than a year ago.

Soybeans rose to $6.73 a bushel, up 57 cents from mid June and $1.45 from July 15, 1975. Upland cotton set another record at 76.5 cents a pound, up 8.5 cents from June and 35.9 cents from July 15 of last year, officials said.

But the department's Mean Animal Price Index dropped 6 per cent from June 15, with substantial declines for cattle, hogs and calves. Beef cattle averaged $33.50 per 100 pounds, down $2.80 from mid-June, while hogs dropped $1.40 to $47.70 per hundredweight.

The gain in corn prices partly reflected an increased demand from foreign buyers, particularly in Western Europe where drought has reduced this year's grain prospects.

In a related report, USDA said corn exports in the 1976-77 marketing year, which will begin Oct. 1, are now estimated at between 1.35 billion and 1.65 billion bushels, an increase of 50 million from a projection made two weeks ago.

Corn exports in the current season are still estimated at a record $1.70 billion.

The department said the increase in next season's corn exports was due primarily to a rising need for more livestock feed grain in Western Europe.

Currently, USDA is estimating this fall's corn harvest at a record 6.55 billion bushels, which officials say will mean plenty of grain for next season's demands and still add to reserves a year from now. A new corn estimate, along with other crop production figures, will be announced on Aug. 12.

FRB cut in money supply blasted

By JOHN CUNNIFF
AP Business Wnalyst

NEW YORK (AP) — In what its chairman termed "another small and prudent step" toward reducing inflation, the Federal Reserve Board has cut its growth target for consumer savings, and thereby confused more than a few people.

Speaking very generally, money is the fuel of economic activity. The Fed controls it, or at least seeks to. Too much money flowing into the economy can generate inflationary demand; too little can retard growth.

For four straight quarters the Fed has reduced its long-term money-supply growth. Consumer savings are a part of money supply. The Fed says there has been an "ample flow" of savings into mortgage lenders. So the goal was cut.

What baffles a lot of people is how Chairman Arthur Burns reached the conclusion, as indicated in testimony a week ago to the House Banking Committee, that the savings rate was adequate and that by lowering the rate inflation would be restrained.

"Savings are what we want," snapped John Wright, who, as president of Wright Bankers' Service, manages and advises many banks on their investment portfolios. He finds the reasoning "astonishing."

If the supply of savings has been ample, he asks, why the persistence of 9.15 per cent home mortgage interest rates that have suppressed new home construction?

"The declared objective of the board to reduce the savings rate," he said, "is in direct opposition to the national objective of increasing our rate of national capital formation, which begins and ends with personal savings, as distinquished from consumption."

The reason, said Wright, "is upside down."

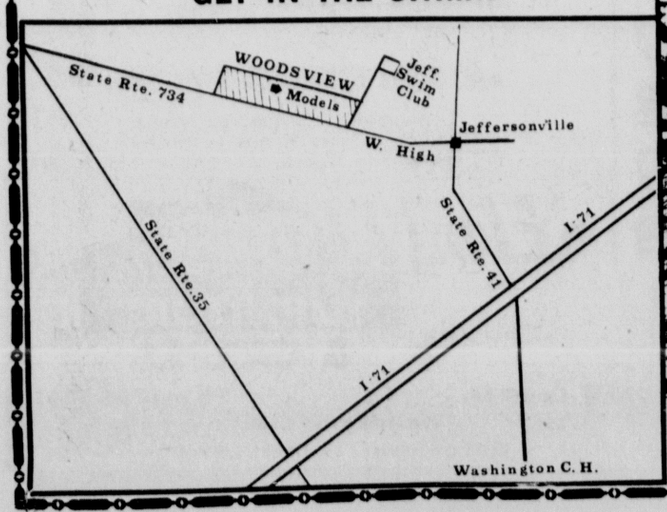

He maintains it is also difficult to reconcile such statements as "activity in all major sectors of the private economy" seem "posed for further advances" with such basic econimic facts as:

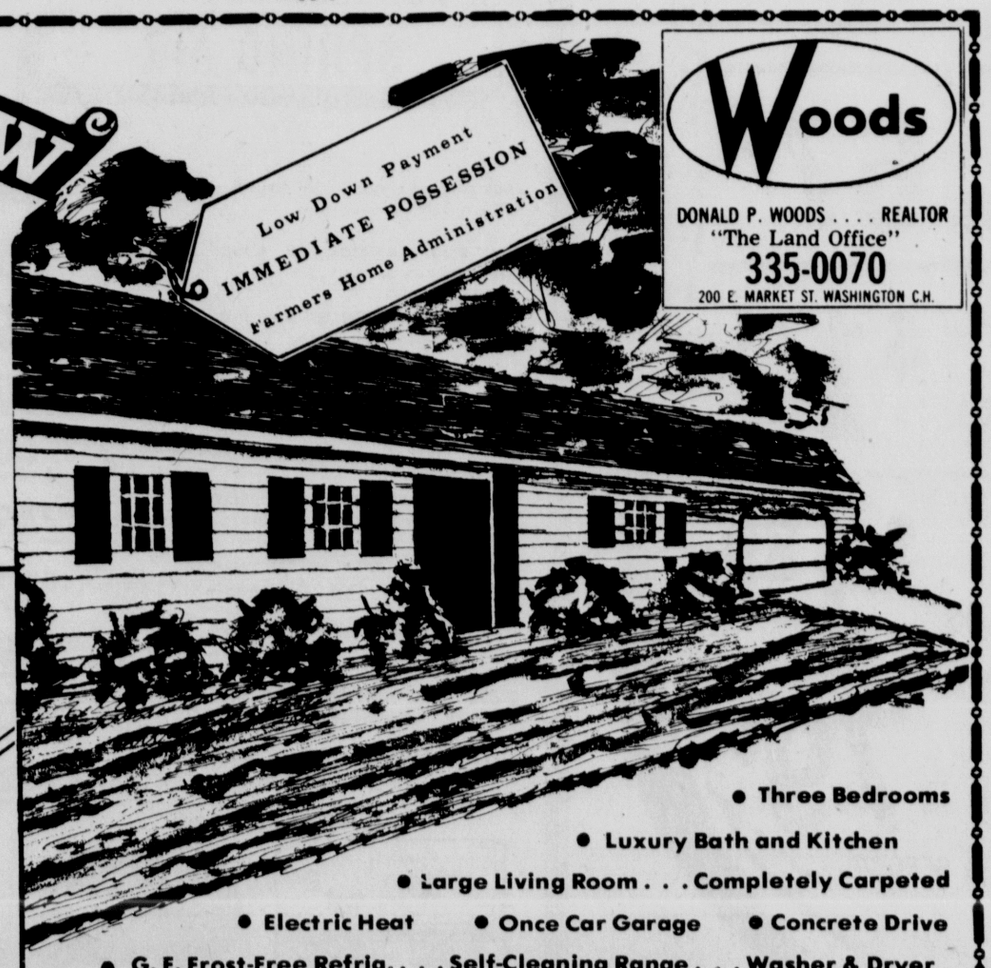

—U.S. industrial production, at 73 per cent of capacity, has not yet managed to recover to even its lowest levels during the last three recessions — 74.2 per cent in 1970, 87.3 in 1967 and 74.2 in 1961.

Five vacancies to be filled

County school board eyes teaching spots

With the opening date of public schools drawing near, the Fayette County Board of Education is busy filling teacher vacancies.

Five new instructors will be reviewed for employment at Tuesday's meeting in the superintendent of schools offices, 414 E. Court St., at 8 p.m.

Two teachers, who were offered contracts at the last school board meeting have rejected the offers. Janice Lucas and Rebecca Long did not sign contracts after finding employment close to their homes.

Two veteran teachers, Mrs. Mary F. Parrett and Charles Lutz have announced they are retiring. Mrs. Parrett, a first grade teacher at Bloomingburg Elementary School, will be ending a 25-year teaching career in Fayette County while Lutz, a junior high music instructor, has taught 37 years, 25 in Fayette County.

Also on the board's agenda Tuesday night will be the review of tuition rates for the coming school year and the review of a contract with Satellite Media Services for films and filmstrips.

Free road maps becoming fewer

By LOUISE COOK
Associated Press Writer

The millions of road maps traditionally given out free at the nation's service stations are changing these days. They are often smaller, there are fewer of them and, in some cases, they cost money.

The problem goes back to 1973. First there was the energy crunch. Service stations no longer needed maps to attract customers. Then there was inflation. Costs rose, and the free map became an expensive proposition for the oil companies.

Today, according to a spokesman for one manufacturer, a consumer looking for a particular type of road map may have to try several places before finding exactly what he or she wants.

There are no nationwide statistics available on how many oil companies still distribute the maps free of charge. "I do know it's not like it once was," said a spokesman for the American Petroleum Institute.

He said some oil companies charge their dealers for the maps, leaving it up to the individual station owner to decide whether to pass the cost on to the consumer. A few stations have installed vending machines and are experimenting with 50-and 75-cent maps.

Conroy V. Erickson, a spokesman for Rand-McNally Inc. of Skokie, Ill., the largest producer of road maps in the country, said the free road map is not dead. But he said many of the oil companies have cut back. "They have gotten out of city maps and ... have less ambitious map programs." Regional maps are replacing state maps.

Erickson said one company, which he declined to name, experimented last year with a kind of "mini-map," but was dissatisfied and returned to regular maps. He said other companies are buying pads of maps which are smaller and cheaper to produce since they do not require the complex folding of the standard map.

Rand-McNally does not disclose sales figures, but some industry sources have estimated that $11 million worth of road maps are distributed by oil companies each year.

Erickson said between 225 and 250 million maps were given out in 1972, the latest year for which he had complete figures. The number declined sharply in 1973 and 1974, he said. It has started rising again, but the 1976 total still will be less than the 1972 figure.

Americans tend to think of the free map as a universal fixture. Service stations abroad do not give out maps, however, and never have, Erickson said. Even in the United States, the concept of free road maps was not introduced until the late 1930s.

Erickson said Rand-McNally has kept down the cost to oil companies by introducing technological improvements to make manfacturing more efficient. "But of course paper is more expensive," he said, and distribution costs for the oil companies have risen sharply.

Ex-Girl Scout suit settled

NOBLESVILLE, Ind. (AP) — A $3.5 million damage suit by a former Indianapolis Girl Scout injured in a swimming accident has been settled out of court.

The suit was filed by Charisse Hagan who was injured at a Girl Scout swimming party at the home of Robert Ralston of Indianapolis in 1972.

Miss Hagan, 17, now of Sandusky, Ohio, named as defendants the Ralstons, John St. Clair of the Classic Pool Co. in Indianapolis, Girl Scout leader Karen Bubenzer, the Girl Scouts of the United States and the Hoosier Capitol Girl Scout Council. All but the Ralstons and St. Clair were later dropped as defendents.

Fire destroys straw, machine

Fayette County sheriff's deputies reported that 2,000 bales of straw and a bush hog mowing machine were destroyed in a 1 p.m. Sunday barn fire.

Washington C.H. firemen were summoned to a Rowe Ging Road barn fire on property farmed by Richard Wolfe, 2805 Ohio 41-S, which they believed may have been set by unknown subjects.

Firemen said that the barn, part of the William Campbell estate trust, succeeded in containing the fire when the tin roof collapsed. A monetary damage estimate was not available.

According to firemen, the fire had largely burned itself out by the time they arrived. A tractor parked nearby was also damaged by the fires.

19 persons harmed by FBI activities

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Justice Department says it has found 19 people who suffered actual harm because they were the targets of an FBI harassment campaign in the 1960s and early 1970s.

One person was fired from a job and others suffered from invasions of their privacy. Some lost face with their colleagues because they were falsely branded police informers.

Department officials reported those findings as they discussed their four-month effort to locate the victims and tell them what the FBI did to them.

Federal marshals delivered messages informing the 19 people that they had been targets of the FBI counterintelligence programs, known as Cointelpro, to harass and disrupt militant political groups on the right and left.

Cointelpro, which operated from 1956 to 1971, involved such tactics as sending anonymous derogatory letters to the parents and employers of political activists and distributing phony leaflets to stir dissension within political organizations.

The Senate intelligence committee reported earlier this year that FBI headquarters had approved more than 2,300 separate Cointelpro acts.

Atty. Gen. Edward H. Levi denounced the operation and launched the plan to notify the victims of actual harm last April. He left it up to a three-member department committee to review the cases and determine who was hurt.

Some Justice Department officials have expressed concern that the notifications could set off a round of lawsuits seeking damages from individual FBI agents.

A committee member, Ric ard Rogars, said notification letters had been delivered to 19 persons as of mid-July. Dozens of others will be notified this month.

Department officials refused to name the 19 persons but said four were targets of the FBI campaign against the New Left, 11 were targets of the campaign against black militants, three were targets of the campaign against white hate groups and one was a target of the disruption of the Communist party.

In other recent developments:

—District Atty. Dale Tooley in Denver said he has subpoenaed FBI officials in his investigation of an alleged burglary at the Socialist Workers party headquarters there. FBI documents released by the Socialist Workers indicate that a paid FBI informant turned over missing party papers to the FBI within hours of the burglary.

—Justice Department prosecutors say they will go to a grand jury within a few weeks with evidence against FBI agents or officials involved in burglaries in the New York area.

—Associate FBI Director Richard G. Held acknowledged that he was responsible for disruptive Cointelpro tactics against political militants in the Minneapolis area while he was running the FBI office there from 1962 to 1973.

Two charges lodged

Youth apprehended after area mishap

A 15-year-old Cincinnati boy who had reportedly taken his grandparents' car from the Queen City, was apprehended by Fayette County sheriff's deputies following an accident on U.S. 62-S.

Sheriff's deputies stated that the youth and a 12-year-old Martinsville boy who had been a passenger with him, were found Saturday in a corn field, some distance from a wrecked automobile the youth had just been driving.

According to sheriff's deputies, the youth had been traveling north on U.S. 62-S, when he lost control of the car, went off the left berm, struck a mailbox, 15 rods of fence, and a utility pole around 8 a.m. Saturday. He then fled on foot, sheriff's deputies said.

The mailbox belonged to Howard E. Smith, 4461 U.S. 62-S, while the fence was the property of Harold W. Moats, 4494 U.S. 62-S. The accident occurred just south of the Mark Road, and the car was moderately damaged.

The 15-year-old Cincinnati boy was charged with reckless operation and driving without a driver's license. Both boys were released into the custody of their parents.

After hitskip mishap

Good Hope resident faces four charges

Three traffic citations and a falsification charge were imposed upon a Good Hope man by both the Fayette County Sheriff's Department and Washington C.H. police officers following investigation of a Saturday hitskip accident.

Fayette County Sheriff's deputies arrested Howard Merritt, 27, of Good Hope, and charged him with failure to yield the right of way, failure to stop after an accident, and driving under suspension.

According to sheriff's deputies, the car which Merritt drove had been northbound on Ohio 753 and failed to yield the right of way to a westbound vehicle on U.S. 22. After striking the vehicle, Merritt fled the accident scene, sheriff's deputies reported.

Later that Saturday, Merritt, along with another Good Hope man, reported to Washington C.H. police officers that the car had been stolen from a Washington C.H. city parking lot.

After an investigation, the two men were arrested by police officers, and each was charged with making a false statement to law enforcement officials.

Both Merritt and the other Good Hope man, Robert Taylor, were found guilty of falsifying a police report during Washington C.H. Municipal Court proceedings on Friday. Both men were sentenced to 30 days in jail, and both had 28 days of the term suspended by Judge Robert L. Simpson, pending their good behavior for a year.

Merritt is scheduled to appear in Washington C.H. Municipal Court today to answer the three traffic charges.

JUDGMENT RENDERED

Fayette County Common Pleas Court has found in favor of the Ohio Department of Transportation in its suit against Nancy Hall, Quiet Acres Nursing Home, et al. The department was seeking to easements to widen a bridge on Ohio 41-S. The defendants were awarded $3,775 for the permanent easement across the properties.

Local store slates name change

While thousands of people in Hollywood dream of someday seeing their name "in lights," Everett Lovhaug of Washington C.H. has passed up the opportunity for two years.

Some 3,000 miles from the movie capital of the world, "Ev's" name is to be hoisted to the marquee. The owner and operator of Hidy's Foods for the past two years, Lovhaug has finally gotten around to changing the name from Hidy's to Ev's Fine Foods.

Signs spelling out the name change are to be lifted Monday to the store front which has been remodeled for the occasion.

The owner stresses that only the name has changed. The same employes will provide the same service that customers have enjoyed for the past two years.

Although Lovhaug has made several major alterations in the store since he purchased it from Ron Hidy in 1974, the name change is the most apparent to the public.

In order to celebrate the second anniversary—Lovhaug made the purchase on August 3—and the change to his own name, the owner is having several drawings for free food which are open to patrons during the next two weeks.

Lovhaug is no stranger to grocery business. He spent 20 years with Super Valu, the country's largest food wholesaler. He was assigned to the Xenia division for 12 years and left there as assistant (division) manager.

He purchased the Hidy's Foods shortly thereafter.

Since he was impressed with the way Hidy had managed the store and customers had come to trust the Hidy name, he was reluctant to change the store name immediately.

Although he had planned the change after a year or so, he just never got around to it, Lovhaug said. Lately, he added, increasing numbers of patrons have been asking when he was going to change the name.

Under his ownership, the meat department facilities were upgraded with new equipment and the bakery-delicatessen area was remodeled. He has also added outdoor storage lockers for frozen foods and produce.

The store has been receiving a face-lift for the past several weeks. Paneling has been erected along the front of the building, and an enclosed entrance area has been constructed.

Lovhaug and his wife, Virginia, reside in Lakewood Hills. They have a married daughter, and their son-in-law, Dallas Marshall, recently began working in the store's meat department.

Gladys Knight has baby boy

DETROIT (AP) — Gladys Knight, lead singer of the Motown group Gladys Knight and the Pips, is the mother of a 10-pound baby boy.

Miss Knight's husband, Barry Hankerson, said after seeing his 23-inch son, "I bet it was her vegetarian diet. That boy is as big as two sacks of sugar."

Miss Knight, who has three children from a previous marriage, was in good condition Sunday at a Detroit hospital after the caesarean birth.

In county clerk of courts office

Electrical improvements okayed

Improvements in the electrical wiring of clerk of courts office were approved by the Fayette County Board of Commissioners Monday.

The commissioners have authorized Dan Kelley Electric to make the improvements in the office. They said the old wiring is unable to adequately handle the office load. Kelley has assured the commissioners that the cost of the project will be under $2,000, but that an exact quote is difficult because of the age of the wiring in the office.

Kelley explained that it is difficult to determine how much of the existing system can be utilized and how much must be replaced.

The commissioners said several of the offices in the Fayette County Courthouse are in need of repair, and they hope to do "a little bit each year."

IN OTHER action, the commissioners authorized the county engineer to furnish assistance to the Wayne Township Board of Trustees for improvements on Rock Bridge Road.

The engineer will provide cost estimates and machinery to be used in the improvements.

The final hearing on the Hare ditch petition has been scheduled for 1:30 p.m. September 7. The engineer's estimate of the project cost is $27,376.

Twenty-three reports of responses to dog complaints were reviewed by the commissioners. They had been submitted by county dog warden Reginald (Chink) Davis.

Eucharistic congress opens

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Thousands of candles flickered in the wind and a Catholic choir sang of Christ as "the Bread of Life." The 41st International Eucharistic Congress opened with prayer, pageantry and possibly the biggest religious parade in American history.

Police said 300,000 persons, including cardinals and bishops who waved and cheered, watched 50,000 men, women and children Sunday in a four-hour, two-mile march from Independence Hall to the Cathedral of Saints Peter and Paul.

The day began with prayer, in a stirring Mass before 2,000 notables in the cathedral, and ended with a candlelight benediction that asked God's blessing on mankind.

Celebrant of both convocations was James Cardinal Knox, an Australian stationed in Rome who came as personal representative of Pope Paul VI. The Pope, troubled by arthritis, turned down an invitation to attend.

Cardinal Knox suggested a stronger belief in Christ would help the world solve its problems "of strife, tribulation and unhappiness." Then he asked of a crowd that included Prince Rainier and Princess Grace of Monaco and 51 cardinals: "Have we Christians really tried this solution?"

More than one million persons are expected to take part in the congress which ends next Sunday. President Ford will attend the final liturgy.

Quake hits New Hebrides

GOLDEN, Colo. (AP) — A strong earthquake shook the New Hebrides Islands in the South Pacific early today, a spokesman at the National Earthquake Information Center said.

Marvin Carlson, a staff geophyscisist, said the quake registered 6.9 on the open-ended Richter scale.

The earthquake could have caused widespread damage if it struck a populated area, Carlson said. There were no reports of severe damage in the New Hebrides.

The New Hebrides are about 500 miles west of Fiji.

On the Richter scale, every increase of one number, say from magnitude 5.5 to magnitude 6.5, means the ground motion is 10 times greater. Some experts say the actual amount of energy released may be 30 times greater.

In populated areas, an earthquake of 3.5 on the Richter scale can cause slight damage in the local area, 4 can cause moderate damage, 5 considerable damage, 6 can be severe. A 7 reading is a "major earthquake, capable of heavy damage; 8 is a "great" earthquake, capable of tremendous damage. The San Francisco earthquake of 1906 registered 8.3 on the Richter scale.

Death rate declines

WASHINGTON (AP) — There were 8.9 deaths for every 1,000 Americans last year, the lowest over-all death rate in U.S. history, new government figures show.

A Census Bureau report released over the weekend says 1.91 million Americans died in 1975. This is the lowest number of deaths since 1967, when 1.86 million persons died, and the first time since 1900, when such records were begun, that the death rate dropped below nine per 1,000. Prior to that, experts believe the death rate was even higher.

Of the 15 leading causes of death, only three showed rate increases in 1973-75, according to the National Center for Health Statistics: cancer, up 4.2 per cent; murder, up 4.1 per cent; and suicide, up 5 per cent.

Declining during the same period, according to the center, were the rates for heart disease — the nation's leading killer — down 4.5 per cent; highway and traffic deaths, down 17.1 per cent; and strokes, down 8.7 per cent.

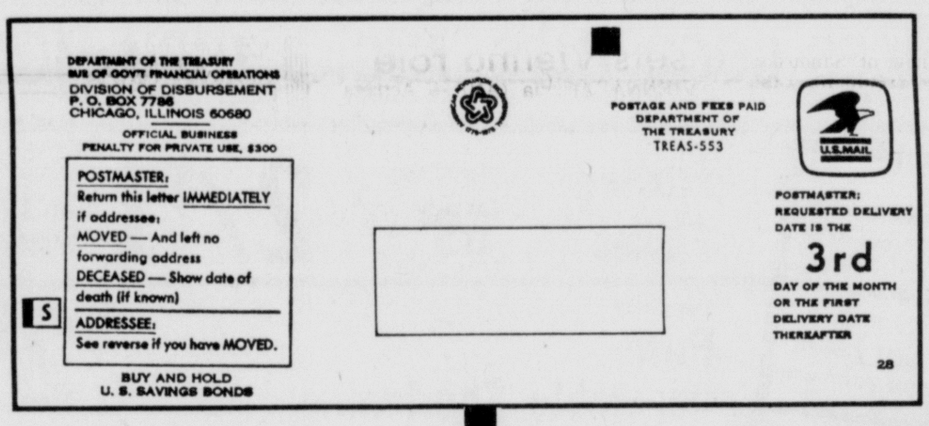

On Jan. 1, 1976, the nation's population, including armed forces overseas, was estimated by the Census Bureau to be 214,435,000, an increase of 1,687,000 over a year earlier.

According to Ohio historians, there were 82 regular mail routes in the state in 1814, mostly by horseback, and newspapers were carried for one cent each.

Buyers, sellers, prices in Junior Fair steer sale

More Fayette County Junior Fair livestock alse records were broken Friday night after Belinda Melton's grand champion steer sold for $155 per cwt. to McDonald's Restaurants, Inc., initiating the final kivestock auction for the fair.

The $155 per cwt. bid (of $1.55 per pound) for Miss Melton's steer, fell short of the record high of $210 per cwt. set just last year. However, the reserve champion established a new record price.

Terry Anderson's Simmental crossbred steer brought $150 per cwt., eclipsing the old mark of $141 per cwt., set last year.

Miss Melton's grand champion steer weighed in at 1,235 pounds and sold for $1,804.25 to McDonald's Restaurant. Anderson's reserve champ, purchased by Girton's Frozen Food Lockers of Washington C.H., weighed in at 1,255 and brought a total of $1,882.50.

The Marting Manufacturing Co, of Washington C.H. paid $345 per cwt. for Darren Hughes' grand champion carcass. The carcass, which placed ninth in the on-foot evaluation, weighed 307 pounds.

The average price paid for the 77 steers was $61 per cwt., well off the record price set in 1974 of $75.02 per cwt.

Bobbi Cottrill's first place calf in the 1,105-1,150 pound division brought $85 per cwt. from Frisch's Restaurant, Inc. The first place steer in the 1,035-1,100 pound class, exhibited by Tracy Crabtree, paid $65 per cwt. from Pennington Bakery.

Louie Null's first place steer in the 1,160-1,215 pound class paid $60 from Greenline Implement Co. Chris Garland's top steer in the 1,015-1,030 pound class brought $63 per cwt. from the trust department of the Huntington Bank.

The Marting Manufacturing Co. paid Mark Bryant $69 per cwt. for his first place calf in the 965-1,000 pound class, while Sharon Baird's top calf in the 800-900 pound bracket also brought $69 from the Fayette County Bank.

Serving as auctioneer for the steer sale was Merlin Woodruff of Urbana, who also served in that capacity during the Junior Fair market barrow and lamb sales held earlier this week.

All-boy choir said discriminatory

WASHINGTON (AP) — An elementary school's all-boy choir whose singers have not yet matured into tenors and baritones is under fire from the federal government for discriminating against little girls.

The Office of Civil Rights in the Department of Health, Education and Welfare says the allboy choir of fifth and sixth graders in Wethersfield, Conn., violates a rule barring single sex choruses.

The only justification for such a group would be "requirements based on vocal range and quality," the government says, but in this case the boys' voices are as high as the girls'.

HEW found itself at odds with President Ford in another recent controversy over sex discrimination. In that case, the department ruled that father-son and mother-daughter dinners held in Scottsdale, Ariz., schools were discriminatory.

Ford ordered the ruling suspended and threatened to seek an amendment to the law if an HEW review upheld the original interpretation.

"This looks like a case of bureaucratic interference in a legitimate educational program," Rep. William Cotter, D-Conn., said Friday about the all-boy singing group.

He said the ruling "may illustrate what happens when well-meaning but overzealous bureaucrats get hold of a good law and make it absurd."

HEW said it is reviewing the matter.

"We didn't want to be in a position of non-compliance," Howland said.

The school started its boys' choir to entice some youngsters who shied away from co-educational music groups. The choir meets after school and receives no money from the town.

Cotter charged that the government's ruling in the Wethersfield case "goes beyond the intent of Congress" in Title IX regulations passed to give girls parity with their male schoolmates.

He said that in this case "the regulations have succeeded in interfering with the system's music program without doing much for advancing the goals of non-discrimination."

U.S. farm export market expands

WASHINGTON (AP) — A credit program to help foreign countries buy U.S. farm products has provided an export market worth $4.4 billion since it began 20 years ago, the Agriculture Department said today.

In the year ending June 30, some $621 million in commodities was financed by the program, more than double the 1974-75 value of $249 million, the department's Office of the General Sales Manager said in a quarterly report. The peak year was $1.1 billion in 1972-73.

The department's Commodity Credit Corporation finances loans to specified countries for the purchase of certain commodities. The program is popularly referred to as "CCC export credit".

The loans are for a maximum of three years and must be repaid in regular installments, including interest at commercial bank rates. The program does not involve donations or long-term easy credit as provided by other programs such as Food for Peace.

Some 25 countries participated in the credit program last fiscal year, compared with 17 in 1974-75. Officials said the 10 top users were South Korea, Poland, Pakistan, Indonesia, Philippines, Peru, the United Kingdom, Morocco, the Dominican Republic and Greece.

"The program is the strongest and most effective mechanism of the U.S. government to move agricultural commodities into foreign markets on commercial terms and to serve as the prime level to permit many nations to make the transition to cash purchases," the report said.

Interest reflects prevailing bank rates. "In its 20-year life there have been some arrearages but no bad-debt losses," the report said.

"Indications are that, in the absence of CCC credit availability, our competitors could well have garnered the U.S. export market share in some nations.." the report said.

TV Viewing

By JAY SHARBUTT
AP Television Writer

LOS ANGELES (AP) — "Television's so cheery," mused Joanna Pettet, an actress by trade. "I'm going to do comedy from now on, I've decided."

True, this won't cause all America to emit a muzzle-velocity Hooray. But consider the on-camera problems of Miss P., a tall, slender, good-looking lady born in London 31 years ago.

TV producers tend to consider her a specialist in roles of much grief, torment or instability, even though her big break came in 1963, when she acted in a Broadway comedy called "Take Her, She's Mine."

That took her to a soap opera, "The Doctors," to play a disillusioned nurse for a few months. In her first job on a TV series, "The Fugitive," she lit up the screen as a pyromaniac.

Next season, when NBC airs a miniseries based on Taylor Caldwell's best-selling "Captains and the Kings," she has a big, grief-stricken part.

She plays an unhappy married lady who has an affair with a young Irish immigrant. When she's seven months pregnant, her husband knocks her down a flight of stairs. Which causes her to expire after some farewell words with the lover.

"This is not soap opera, even though it sounds like it," she hastened to add. "It's actually a fine story."

Miss Pettet, who in the flesh actually seems of sunny disposition, was asked how come she gets all these woe roles.

"It's really something I've been thinking about lately," said the actress, laughing. "I've come to the conclusion it was because of 'The Group.'"

She had reference to the 1965 movie based on Mary McCarthy's best-selling novel about what happens to a squad of upper-class young women after their graduation from Vassar College.

"I played Kay, the one who had the nervous breakdown eventually," she said. "The film opened with my wedding and ended with my funeral. She committed suicide in the book, but I'm not certain she did that in the movie.

"Anyhow, after that, it seemed that with only a few exceptions that whenever there was a heavy drama requiring a tortured lady, I got the call. Even in the last (TV) movie-of-the-week I did, I was tortured lady."

She said after she gets through her work in "Captains and the Kings," she hopes to lighten her griefload with some good comic parts, particularly in theatrical and made-for-TV flicks.

Miss Pettet said she had instructed her agent to seek out such parts for her. She was asked why she didn't do this earlier.

"Because it didn't strike me that what was happening was putting me into a kind of mold," she said, attributing this lack of awareness in part to preoccupation with personal problems she'd had the past few years.

"It didn't hit me until a few months ago, when I was in some part and I suddenly realized I wasn't enjoying it. I knew I could play the hell out of the part because I'd done it so many times before.

"And I guess I really didn't want to show them (producers) any more that I could do it."

Catalyst study made by Battelle

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — A two-year study to develop better catalysts for producing clean low-sulfur liquid fuel from coal for utility boilers is underway at Battelle-Columbus laboratories.

The $1.2 million research project is sponsored by the federal Energy Research and Development Administration and is aimed at improving catalysts that permit faster conversion of coal at lower pressures and with longer catalyst life.

Study manager David A. Berry said a synthoil research reactor will be built at Battelle's West Jefferson site near here. Berry said it will be the first such plant built on private premises and is expected to be in operation next summer.

Harshaw Chemical Co. of Cleveland, manufacturer of the presently used catalyst, will participate in the project as a sub-contractor to Battelle-Columbus.

Ohio University increases tuition

ATHENS, Ohio (AP) — Ohio University trustees voted Saturday to raise student tuition $15 per quarter to compensate for funds lost to Gov. James A. Rhodes 2 per cent budget cutback.

Based on enrollment projections of 14,000 students this fall, the trustees said the hike would recapture $490,000 expected to be lost to the cutback.

The undergraduate quarterly tuition will rise to $290 while the graduate student tuition will go up to $340.

Tennis action will continue until the tournament finals on Sunday.

Olympic Games over; questions linger in air

MONTREAL (AP) — The 1976 Summer Olympics are over.

Now the question is, are the Olympics over? Has the world outgrown the vision of Baron de Coubertin, who sought brotherhood through sports in founding the modern Games in 1892? Has, as International Olympic Committee director Monique Berlioux said, the soul gone out of the Olympics?

The Games ended Sunday, as they started more than two weeks ago, with pomp and ceremony clouded by controversy and international political wrangling.

They ended with the Soviet Union, the host country for the 1980 Games and the country whose athletes won the most medals here, accusing Canada of kidnaping a 17-year-old diver and angrily demanding his return to Russian control.

It was symbolic of the course of the Games — athletes serving as pawns in a larger game, mere walk-on participants on a global stage concerned with politics, international diplomacy, racial tensions, wheat deals, fears, security.

Olympic spirit missing

"They have placed an iron collar on the Olympics," said Madame Berlioux. "The soul has gone. The Olympic spirit is missing."

The next Games are in Moscow, four years from now. There is no way of knowing how they will fare. There are reports from China indicating that enormous nation, not an Olympic participant, may stage conflicting games with invitations to the 28 African nations that boycotted the XXI Olympiad.

Beyond Moscow, the future is even more cloudy. Conflicting proposals have been made — disperse the Olympics among various countries, or give the Games a permanent site in Greece.

Phillip Krumm, the head of the United States Olympic Committee, opposed the latter suggestion and insisted that (1) the Games will continue and (2) the Americans will improve."The name and the Games will carry on," he said, but noticed, "we face some gigantic problems of organization."

As to the Americans' performance, which ended on a high note Saturday, Krumm said, "We did better than the last Olympics against tougher competition. We spend $1 million a year on team development. The East Germans spend $50 million. We are the only country that does not have some government assistance."

The Americans won eight gold medals Saturday, five of them in boxing, for their best showing of the Games. But there was disappointment, too. They lost a couple they figured to win — Frank Shorter in the marathon and Dwight Stones in the high jump.

U.S. 2nd in medal race

The United States finished with 34 gold medals, 35 silver and 25 bronze, a total of 94. Russia led with a count of 47-43-35, 125. East Germany, backed by a massive government subsidy program, produced 40-25-25, 90 over-all. Most of them came from its women, who dominated the swimming events almost to the extent the American men ruled theirs.

Shirley Babashoff, America's top woman swimmer who won three silver and a gold, cast a glance at the broad-shouldered East German women and sniffed:

"I'm glad I don't have to walk around my neighborhood looking like a guy."

The East German women won both their relays in the final day of track and field, and the American men won both of theirs.

American relay wins

Harvey Glance, Phoenix City, Ala.; Johnny Jones, Lampasas, Tex.; Millard Hampton, San Jose, Calif., and Steve Riddick, Philadelphia, won the 400-meter relay in 38.33 seconds.

The quartet of Harvey Frazier, Philadelphia; Bennie Brown, Malpitas, Calif.; Fred Newhouse, Baton Rouge, La., and Maxie Parks, Los Angeles, won the 1,600 meters easily in 2:58.66.

Those were the fifth and sixth gold medals collected by the Americans in track and field, a sport they once dominated. They expected to win the marathon, where Shorter was defending, and the high jump, where the flamboyant Stones holds the world record.

But an obscure East German, a converted steeplechaser named Waldemar Cierpinski, swept through a steady rain in an Olympic record 2 hours, 9 minutes and 55 seconds, putting Shorter behind him with about five miles to go in the 26-mile, 385-yard test. Shorter took the silver medal in 2:10:45.8. Lasse Viren, the bearded Finn who won the 5,000-and 10,000-meter races, finished fifth in his quest for a distance triple.

In the high jump, Poland's Jacek Wszola won at 7 feet, 4½ inches. Stones was third at 7-3.

John Walker of New Zealand won as expected with a slow, strategic 3:39.17 in the 1,500 meters. Filbert Bayi of Tanzania, the world record holder at the distance, was among the missing. His nation boycotted the Games.

Ivanka Khristove of Bulgaria won the only other track and field gold of the final day with a throw of 69-5 in the women's shot put.

John Peterson, a farmer's son from Comstock, Wis., won the 180-pound freestyle wrestling gold medal and his brother Ben took the silver at 198 pounds.

There was a brother act in the boxers, too. Middleweight Mike Spinks, St. Louis, won his division and older brother Leon, a U.S. Marine stationed at Camp Lejuene, N.C., won the gold in the light-heavy class. Leo Randolph, Tacoma, Wash., won at 112 pounds, Howard Davis, Glen Cove, N.Y., took the gold at 132 pounds and Sugar Ray Leonard, Palmer Park, Md., won at 140.

Spinks brothers win gold

The only American loser in the final round was Army Sgt. Charles Mooney, Ft. Bragg, N.C., at 119 pounds. The United States finished with five gold, a silver and a bronze, by far its best boxing showing ever.

The Games closed Sunday night with France winning the equestrian team jumping gold medal, followed by West Germany and Belgium.

Only six athletes from each nation marched in the closing ceremony Sunday night, followed by the traditional lighting of candles, extinguishing of the Olympic flame and singing of "Auld Lang Syne."

Then they took their memories and their medals and dispersed to the far corners of the world.

The memories may be better than the medals.

The gold medals are only gold plated.

Reds finally beat Jones, sweep series from Padres

By FRANK BROWN
AP Sports Writer

Randy Jones wanted to pick up his San Diego Padres by picking up his 19th victory of the season. The team had lost seven of the last eight games — the only victory coming in his last start — and the time was ripe for Jones to top the Reds again as he had done the last four times he had faced them.

But all Randy Jones picked up Sunday was his fifth loss, because his sinker picked up when it was supposed to have dropped.

"I just made two mistakes," said Jones, who is entitled to two after recording more than one-third of his club's victories this year. "I wanted to pick the ball club up. I was really excited. I realized I couldn't make too many mistakes against the Reds."

Two turned out to be too many. "I hung a sinker to (George) Foster and the big thing was hanging a sinker to (Doug) Flynn."

The first mistake, in the fourth inning, became Foster's 23rd home run of the season and 92nd run batted in. Flynn sent the second miscue into center field for the single that scored the eventual winning runs in the 5-4 Reds triumph.

In the other National League games Sunday, Montreal blanked Pittsburgh 2-0; Chicago trimmed St. Louis 2-1 in 10 innings; Philadelphia swept New York 7-6 in 11 innings and 2-0; Houston topped Atlanta 6-0, then Los Angeles stopped San Francisco 4-1 and 4-3 in 10 innings.

Expos 2, Pirates 0

Wayne Garrett's first-inning triple and an eighth-inning RBI single by Ellis Valentine backed a five-hitter by Steve Rogers in the Expos' victory.

Cubs 2, Cardinals 1

Two mistakes nearly cost Chicago a victory. After breaking up John Denny's no-hitter with two outs in the eighth and taking a 1-0 lead, a ninth-inning three-base error by left fielder Jose Cardenal preceded one by first baseman by Pete LaCock, permitting the tying run to score.

LaCock attoned for his foulup in the 10th, driving in the winning run with a single off Denny. "I don't want to talk to you vultures," a distressed Denny said to newsmen. "Get away from me."

Phillies 7-2, Mets 6-0

Mike Schmidt's 27th homer of the season took the nightcap for Philadelphia after Garry Maddox' 11th-inning single scored Jay Johnstone from first base to win the opener. Greg Luzinski had a grand slam in the opener, but New York came back to tie it in the ninth inning.

Astros 6, Braves 0

Larry Dierker's five-hit shutout of Atlanta was his second in a row overall, his third in a row at home and his fourth of the season. Jose Cruz drove in two runs and had three hits to pace the victory.

Dodgers 4-4, San Francisco 1-3

Reliever Charlie Hough picked up his ninth save of the season by protecting Don Sutton's victory in the opener, then won the nightcap on his own as the Dodgers swept the Giants. Bill Buckner had seven hits in the doubleheader but did not drive in a run.

Bengals edge Pack, 23-17

GREEN BAY, Wis. (AP) — Archie Griffin, who felt he had something to prove, did just that.

And the Green Bay Packers felt they had done some proving of their own—while conceding that virtually all they had accomplished had occurred in the first half Saturday night.

Griffin, two-time Heisman Trophy winner from Ohio State, rushed 12 times for 49 yards and a touchdown, all in the second half.

The rookie's running complemented the passing of reserve John Reaves, who completed 11 of 14 for 81 yards after intermission as the Cincinnati Bengals overcame a 14-0 deficit to beat the Packers 23-17 in a National Football League pre-season opener for both clubs.

"It definitely gave me confidence," said Griffin, who had joined the Bengals just seven days earlier from the College All-Star camp.

Thought by many to be too small at 5-foot-9 and 189 pounds to succeed in the NFL, Griffin swept for 20 yards to the Packer 13-yard line, then scored from the three for a 16-14 Cincinnati lead.

Joe Danelo's 20-yard field goal put Green Bay ahead 17-16 in the final quarter and the Bengals took over on their 24 with 9:01 to play.

Griffin then made two nineyard gains as the Bengals marched in 16 plays to the winning touchdown, scored by Ed Williams from two yards out with 15 seconds left.

King leads team to Hillsboro win

HILLSBORO — Jeff King pitched a no-hitter and slammed a home run as New Holland won its first-round game in the Hillsboro Little League tourney over the weekend.

King struck out 13 while walking only two in the 20-0 win over Leesburg. He also had three hits at the plate including the homer.

New Holland is the tourney's defending champion. The squad played as Good Hope last season.

ON THE WAY — David Ross delivers a pitch to a Circleville batter in the losers' bracket finals of the Lions Babe Ruth tournament at Roszmann Field Saturday. Ross was credited with a 4-3 win over Circleville which moved the Washington C.H. team into the finals against unbeaten London. London won the tourney with an 11-3 decision.

WCH Babe Ruth All-Stars lose 1st tournament ever

Washington C.H. Babe Ruth All-Stars lost the annual Lions tournament at Roszmann Field for the first time ever Saturday as a tough London team breezed to an easy 11-3 championship victory.

The All-Stars' hold on the tournament championship was threatened by London last year, but the Washington C.H. team fought its way through the losers' bracket to win the tourney. London changed the story this year.

The London squad dropped Washington C.H. to losers' bracket last Sunday.

The Court House squad came back to eliminate Circleville in the losers' bracket Saturday before setting up the tournament finals. Washington C.H. needed to beat London twice to grab the trophy.

In the game with Circleville, Washington C.H. scored four runs in the third inning and held on for a 4-3 win behind the pitching of David Ross.

Ross needed relief help from Bill Hanners in the bottom of the seventh when Circleville had the tying run on second with two outs. Hanners threw one pitch which was grounded to second baseman Shane Riley and relayed to Tom Dean at first for the final out.

Hanners started the following game against London, but Washington C.H. was tagged for eight runs in the top of the second after taking a 1-0 first inning lead.

Dean and Shawn Riley followed Hanners to the mound, but London breezed to an 11-3 win.

Johnson's win parent-child event

Paul Johnson and his son, Scott, combined for a 36-hole total of 170 to win the 16-year-old and over Parent-Child Tournament at the Washington Country Club Sunday.

Scott shot an 89 while his father carded an 81 to win the upper age group division. Dr. Robert Heiny and son Mark finished second with a 176.

Sixteen-year-old Gary Fisher shot a 45-42-88 to record the best junior score of the day. He and his father, Eddie, finished third with a 187 total.

There was a tie for first place in the 13 to 14-year-old age group. William Mount and son Gary tied John Scott and son Jeff with 174 scores. An 18-hole playoff round will be played sometime this week to determine the winner.

Richard English and his 12-year-old son, Eric, won the 11 to 12-year-old age group with 212 stroke total. Pat and Tim Riley were second with a 214.

Ten-year-old Chip Tate shot a 69 for nine holes and teamed with his father Ralph's 47 to win the 10-year-old and under age group. Jim Polk and son Jimmy were second with a 127.

The best nine-hole score by a girl was a 58 Sunday with Patricia Price carded the low score.

Next Sunday the annual Husband-Wife Tourney will be held at the country club.

Lauda critically injured in race

MANNHEIM, West Germany (AP) — World champion driver Niki Lauda, an outspoken critic of the Nuerburgring, remained in critical condition today from injuries received in a three-car crash Sunday during the Formula I German Grand Prix.

Doctors in the intensive-care unit at Mannheim Medical Hospital were most concerned about Lauda's lungs, damaged by poisonous fumes he inhaled in the cockpit of his burning Ferrari 312 T2, a hospital spokesman said.

Iskersky wins Ohio tennis title

SPRINGFIELD, Ohio (AP) — Erick Iskersky says the jitters early in the match "might have gotten to me," but he soon relaxed and easily won the 18-and-under title in the Western Open Juniors and Boys Tennis Championship.

Seahawks nipped by 49ers in exhibition

Expansion teams drop NFL debuts

SEATTLE (AP) — Jack Patera is a straight shooter. He tells it like it is.

"It was nice to come close, but it would have been nice to win," the rookie head coach of the upstart Seattle Seahawks said after his first-year National Football League team lost 27-20 to the San Francisco 49ers Sunday in a preseason opener for both clubs.

Expansion teams aren't supposed to win their first preseason game. Seattle and the NFL's other newcomer this season, Tampa Bay, didn't.

But the Kingdome crowd of 60,825, some of whom booed the Seahawks as they left the field trailing 17-0 at halftime, had plenty to cheer about in the second half when quarterback Jim Zorn, who spelled starting quarterback Neil Graff after halftime, passed and ran Seattle's way back into the game.

The victory was the first for new 49er head Coach Monte Clark, whose team held a 24-0 third-period lead before Seattle caught fire behind Zorn for three late touchdowns to make it a game.

"We accomplished two goals we had going into the game," said Clark, a former assistant under Don Shula at Miami. "We got to see all our people and still won."

Zorn, who was with the Dallas Cowboys through the preseason last year before being cut two days before the season opener to make room for Preston Pearson, passed for two touchdowns and ran for a third. He made a scrambling bid for a fourth score in the waning seconds, but was dropped two yards short of the goal line as the clock ran out.

"This game gives us a great deal of confidence going into next week," said Zorn. "Our receivers were great, even better than I thought they would be."

San Francisco jumped ahead 7-0 late in the first period on Delvin William's eight-yard run. The 14-play, 89-yard drive consumed 9:56 of the quarter.

Larry Schreiber hauled in a four-yard scoring pass from veteran quarterback Jim Plunkett, obtained from New England in the offseason, for a second quarter score, and Kermit Johnson scored on a 17-yard run in the third period to put the 49ers ahead 24-0. Veteran Bruce Gossett also booted field goals of 22 and 20 yards for San Francisco.

The New England Patriots, in the only other game Sunday, won the first overtime game of the year, beating the visiting New York Giants 13-7 in a night contest.

Sam Cunningham dived over from the one-yard line for his second touchdown after Andy Johnson set up the score with a 59-yard dash to the four. The Giants had tied the game with only 27 seconds left in regulation time on rookie Gordon Bell's plunge from the one.

Most of last season's winners opened this year's pre-season play on a successful note Saturday. Super Bowl champion Pittsburgh beat New Orleans 24-14, Baltimore blanked Cleveland 21-0, Washington trimmed Atlanta 17-10, St. Louis nipped the New York Jets 13-12, Los Angeles ruined Tampa Bay's debut 26-3 and Cincinnati slipped by Green Bay 23-17. In clashes between winners, Oakland edged Super Bowl runnerup Dallas 17-14 and Miami put down Minnesota 16-3. In other games Chicago nudged Denver 15-14, Detroit defeated Buffalo 20-17 with O.J. Simpson still absent and San Diego bounced Philadelphia 20-7.

In the Monday night game, Houston plays at Kansas City.

In some of the top performances of the weekend, Pittsburgh's Terry Bradshaw connected on 15 of 20 passes for 194 yards and two touchdowns, both to John Stallworth, and Don McCauley ran for two scores for Baltimore, last year's Cinderella team.

Ed Williams scored his second touchdown with 15 seconds left for Cincinnati after reserve quarterback John Reeves hit 11 of 14 passes for 81 yards for the Bengals.

Quarterback Virgil Carter came off the bench in the second quarter and directed Chicago to two scores, including a two-yard plunge by Johnny Musso late in the final quarter. Don Woods scored twice for San Diego and rookie Joe Washington added a third.

Washington's victory was spoiled by a dislocated right shoulder suffered by All-Pro wide receiver Charley Taylor, who will be out four to six weeks.

Amphetamine use widespread in NFL?

LAS VEGAS (AP) — Dr. Lee Johnson, chairman of the recreation department at the University of California at San Diego, was on the podium talking treason.

"The fans don't know it, but half the players on the field could be taking amphetamines," Johnson said.

The bidding:

East	South	West	North
Pass	Pass	Pass	2 ♦
Pass	2 ♠	Pass	4 ♠

Opening lead - two of diamonds.

Most players prefer to bid naturally and don't bother with artificial conventions. But there is no doubt that some artificial conventions gain points when the situation for which the convention was designed comes along.

One of the most dramatic examples of this occurred in the accompanying deal from a match played many years ago by Italy and the United States. The bidding went as shown when Belladonna and Avarelli held the North-South cards for Italy.

The artificial two diamond bid by Belladonna indicated a hand with 5-4-4-0 or 4-4-4-1 distribution and at least 17 points in high cards. A two club opening bid would have shown the same type of distribution but only 12 to 16 points.

The two spade response indicated a weak hand, with at least four spades. (With 7 or more points Avarelli would have responded two notrump, obliging Belladonna to bid his short suit and thus identify the three suits he actually had.)

Belladonna raised two spades to four and Avarelli made eleven tricks by means of a crossruff, scoring 450 points.

When the U.S. held the North-South cards, the bidding went:

East	South	West	North
Pass	Pass	Pass	1 ♥
Pass	Pass	Pass

North went down one and the U.S. team lost 500 points on the deal.

It would probably not be fair to point the finger of blame at either North or South for bidding as they did and winding up in the dreadful contract of one heart. According to standard bidding methods, neither of them did anything wrong. The hand lent itself to the Italian bidding style, and most critics who commented on the matter attributed the unfortunate outcome to bad luck.

School Uses Cemeteries For Outdoor Classrooms

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — After his class visited a local cemetery recently, Julian Shanks, 12, decided to do some research into the Civil, Spanish-American and two World Wars.

His study was prompted by the military markers at the graves of men who had fought in those battles.

Two other youngsters made rubbings of gravestones for an art class while Cheryl Rogers, 12, looked into the history of families buried in the same cemetery.

The students' projects were part of "Operation Cemetery" at the E. Washington Rhodes Middle School in north Philadelphia.

Dr. Edward Stranix, administrator at Rhodes, first thought of using cemeteries as outdoor classrooms for inner city children about three years ago.

He obtained a $3,000 grant from the U.S. Office of Education for the program. The grant, which was allocated under the agency's Project KARE (Knowledgeable Action to Restore the Environment), paid for the publication of a workbook that suggests learning projects to be conducted in cemeteries.

The idea has been picked up by dozens of other schools throughout the United States and Canada.

"Most people think that environmental studies can be conducted only in suburban or rural areas — in woods and forests," Stranix says. He sees cemeteries as perfect outdoor classroom-laboratories.

"The cemetery is a safe, open and available area for making discoveries," Stranix says. "A youngster can catch toads, collect rocks and observe butterflies that aren't to be found on city streets."

Stranix began the program during the 1973-74 school year with 30 fifth and sixth graders. Now 80 per cent of the Rhodes faculty are using the cemetery program in the regular curriculum.

Stranix notes the program is no substitute for the regular classroom, but he says it does get students interested in learning.

Jacob Hoffman, Rhodes principal, says "Operation Cemetery" proves that "everything good doesn't have to cost money." He said once youngsters get interested in a subject they will be more likely to take it back to the classrooms and learn more.

Julian Shanks is one student who did.

Julian admitted he was at first "a little scared" when his teacher said the class would be visiting three local cemeteries. Now, Julian thinks the cemetery is a "very nice place to go learn about nature and to study math and science and social studies."

Amish still battle Ohio traffic law

KENTON, Ohio (AP) — Though the Amish in this northwestern Ohio town are characteristically reserved and unassuming, they are embroiled in a court battle with the Hardin County officials by claiming that a state traffic law violates their right to religious freedom.

The law requires that slow moving vehicles, including their buggies and wagons, must carry a triangular reflective sign so they can be seen at night by motorists.

A suit is pending in U.S District Court in Toledo challenging the law. The usual fine for violating is $25. But the Amish say at least five members of their 500-member community in Hardin County have had their buggies confiscated and sold at a sheriff's auction for violating the law requiring the emblem.

"We are a plain class of people," said one Amish man, who asked not to be identified on religious grounds. "That symbol wouldn't be very plain."

But the spokesman for the 500-member community said the local sect does use a gray reflectorized tape to mark their wagons and buggies. The Amish put their faith in God to protect them, he said, but "we also believe in safety devices."

Hardin County Sheriff James Baldridge says he has no animosity toward the Amish community. But county officials say there have been several accidents involving motor vehicles and Amish buggies. And Baldridge is out to enforce the law.

"People started calling me up and saying 'I nearly hit an Amish buggy. Do something about it.' So we started arresting them," said Baldridge. "The only thing we've ever done is arrest them at night," he said. "We haven't enforced the law in the daytime."

The Amish say they didn't file the federal suit themselves. But they say a document was signed permitting the names of four sect members to be used as plaintiffs in the case.

The law requiring the safety signs was changed in 1975 to include not just farm equipment but all slow-moving vehicles, according to Hardin County Prosecutor James Crates. But a spokesman says an amendment to that bill is pending in the Legislature.

The bidding:

East	South	West	North
Pass	Pass	Pass	2 ♦
Pass	2 ♠	Pass	4 ♠

Opening lead - two of diamonds.

Most players prefer to bid naturally and don't bother with artificial conventions. But there is no doubt that some artificial conventions gain points when the situation for which the convention was designed comes along.

One of the most dramatic examples of this occurred in the accompanying deal from a match played many years ago by Italy and the United States. The bidding went as shown when Belladonna and Avarelli held the North-South cards for Italy.

The artificial two diamond bid by Belladonna indicated a hand with 5-4-4-0 or 4-4-4-1 distribution and at least 17 points in high cards. A two club opening bid would have shown the same type of distribution but only 12 to 16 points.

The two spade response indicated a weak hand, with at least four spades. (With 7 or more points Avarelli would have responded two notrump, obliging Belladonna to bid his short suit and thus identify the three suits he actually had.)

Belladonna raised two spades to four and Avarelli made eleven tricks by means of a crossruff, scoring 450 points.

When the U.S. held the North-South cards, the bidding went:

East	South	West	North
Pass	Pass	Pass	1 ♥
Pass	Pass	Pass

North went down one and the U.S. team lost 500 points on the deal.

It would probably not be fair to point the finger of blame at either North or South for bidding as they did and winding up in the dreadful contract of one heart. According to standard bidding methods, neither of them did anything wrong. The hand lent itself to the Italian bidding style, and most critics who commented on the matter attributed the unfortunate outcome to bad luck.

School Uses Cemeteries For Outdoor Classrooms

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — After his class visited a local cemetery recently, Julian Shanks, 12, decided to do some research into the Civil, Spanish-American and two World Wars.

His study was prompted by the military markers at the graves of men who had fought in those battles.

Two other youngsters made rubbings of gravestones for an art class while Cheryl Rogers, 12, looked into the history of families buried in the same cemetery.

The students' projects were part of "Operation Cemetery" at the E. Washington Rhodes Middle School in north Philadelphia.

Dr. Edward Stranix, administrator at Rhodes, first thought of using cemeteries as outdoor classrooms for inner city children about three years ago.

He obtained a $3,000 grant from the U.S. Office of Education for the program. The grant, which was allocated under the agency's Project KARE (Knowledgeable Action to Restore the Environment), paid for the publication of a workbook that suggests learning projects to be conducted in cemeteries.

The idea has been picked up by dozens of other schools throughout the United States and Canada.

"Most people think that environmental studies can be conducted only in suburban or rural areas — in woods and forests," Stranix says. He sees cemeteries as perfect outdoor classroom-laboratories.

"The cemetery is a safe, open and available area for making discoveries," Stranix says. "A youngster can catch toads, collect rocks and observe butterflies that aren't to be found on city streets."

Stranix began the program during the 1973-74 school year with 30 fifth and sixth graders. Now 80 per cent of the Rhodes faculty are using the cemetery program in the regular curriculum.

Stranix notes the program is no substitute for the regular classroom, but he says it does get students interested in learning.

Jacob Hoffman, Rhodes principal, says "Operation Cemetery" proves that "everything good doesn't have to cost money." He said once youngsters get interested in a subject they will be more likely to take it back to the classrooms and learn more.

Julian Shanks is one student who did.

Julian admitted he was at first "a little scared" when his teacher said the class would be visiting three local cemeteries. Now, Julian thinks the cemetery is a "very nice place to go learn about nature and to study math and science and social studies."

Amish still battle Ohio traffic law

KENTON, Ohio (AP) — Though the Amish in this northwestern Ohio town are characteristically reserved and unassuming, they are embroiled in a court battle with the Hardin County officials by claiming that a state traffic law violates their right to religious freedom.

The law requires that slow moving vehicles, including their buggies and wagons, must carry a triangular reflective sign so they can be seen at night by motorists.

A suit is pending in U.S District Court in Toledo challenging the law. The usual fine for violating is $25. But the Amish say at least five members of their 500-member community in Hardin County have had their buggies confiscated and sold at a sheriff's auction for violating the law requiring the emblem.

"We are a plain class of people," said one Amish man, who asked not to be identified on religious grounds. "That symbol wouldn't be very plain."

But the spokesman for the 500-member community said the local sect does use a gray reflectorized tape to mark their wagons and buggies. The Amish put their faith in God to protect them, he said, but "we also believe in safety devices."

Hardin County Sheriff James Baldridge says he has no animosity toward the Amish community. But county officials say there have been several accidents involving motor vehicles and Amish buggies. And Baldridge is out to enforce the law.

"People started calling me up and saying 'I nearly hit an Amish buggy. Do something about it.' So we started arresting them," said Baldridge. "The only thing we've ever done is arrest them at night," he said. "We haven't enforced the law in the daytime."

The Amish say they didn't file the federal suit themselves. But they say a document was signed permitting the names of four sect members to be used as plaintiffs in the case.

The law requiring the safety signs was changed in 1975 to include not just farm equipment but all slow-moving vehicles, according to Hardin County Prosecutor James Crates. But a spokesman says an amendment to that bill is pending in the Legislature.

COOKING DEMONSTRATION — Costumed interpreter Debra Osborne demonstrates her 19th century cooking skills in the kitchen of the Johnston home in Piqua.

Interesting story recalled each summer

Piqua example of pioneer spirit

John Johnston was one of the most commanding figures in the history of the American Indian. A federal agent who served as a negotiator to seven different tribes during the 19th century, his interesting story is recalled each summer by thousands of vacationers who visit the Piqua Historical Area in northwestern, Ohio.

Situated in the heart of the Great Miami River Valley, off Ohio 66, Piqua stands today as a symbol of the red man's heritage and an example of the pioneer spirit that once prevailed throughout Ohio.

A good starting point for a tour of the area would be a stop at the Historic Indian Museum. Here, visitors are introduced to the work of Johnston through the history of the people with whom he dealt the most — the Ohio Indians.

The museum contains one of the most comprehensive collections devoted to the Historic Indian. The displays of artifacts and panels of written history view the red man through the eyes of those who knew them best; the fur-traders, soldiers, missionaries and pioneers.

Excellent exhibits on religion, games, tools, food preparation and medicine show the Indians as a self-reliant, distinctive group of individuals, while exquisite beadwork, basketry, feathered war bonnets and finely made bow attest to their artistic quality. Housed in a building that resembles a contemporary fort, the museum provides a worthwhile preface to the tour of the adjacent Johnston home.

Built between 1810 and 1815, the solid brick, Georgian-styled residence is the only Indian agent house in Ohio and one of the few remaining in the United States. Remodeled to its probable appearance in 1830, the interior looks much the same as it did when Johnston lived here. Although he frequently entertained Indians at his home, Johnston preferred to Johnston by the Indians during his distinguished career can be seen throughout the residence.

A walking tour through the home begins in the front hall and leads first to the drawing room, which hosted such famous guests as Chief Little Turtle, Tecumseh and President William Henry Harrison, then to Johnston's study, with its handsome antiques and leather bound books, and the large dining room, which was the scene of numerous feasts and suppers.

Four large bedrooms, upstairs, provided the sleeping accommodations for the Johnstons and their fifteen children and today contain countless pieces of overstuffed, period furniture, given by descendents of the Johnston family.

Most days, a pleasant aroma fills the home from the foods being prepared in the kitchen downstairs. Because pioneer kitchens were hot and busy places, they were often located away from the main part of the house, which explains the basement location. Here, costumed interpreters demonstrate the use of the large, central fireplace and the 19th century cooking utensils. Food is still being prepared from regional recipes revived from old cook books and visitors are invited to sample the delicious results, fresh from the oven.

Outside, the flagstone courtyard provided a convenient locations for chopping wood, planting herb gardens and cooking on an outdoor fireplace during the hot summer months. A fruit kiln on the courtyard was used to dry apples for shipment to Cincinnati.

A stone path leads down the hillside to the springhouse, which not only served as the "refrigerator" of the farm, where items to be kept cooled were stored, but also acted as a residence for the hired help. Here, the work that was essential in the 1800s is performed today by knowledgeable hostesses, including candle-dipping, basket making, spinning, weaving and soap making.

Just north of the springhouse, stands the double pen log barn, the largest one in Ohio, and the cider house, where the popular drink was made and stored.

Finally, for a peaceful and relaxing way to savor the unique combination of Piqua's history and landscape, the General Harrison canal boat stands ready to take visitors for a ride on the Miami and Erie Canal. The restored section runs for about a mile along a deeply wooded hillside and is bordered by a towpath, where two mules in tandem pull the boat. At one end of the canal, a set of stone locks are still standing. The trip is one of the smoothest rides on earth and the most leisurely excursions imaginable.

Characterized by the Indians as "our beloved friend" and by a 20th century historian an "one of the most useful men of his generation," John Johnston's story remains a legend and his home offers a most memorable way to spend a summer afternoon.

The Piqua Historical Area is open April through October,, from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m., Tuesday through Sunday. Admission is $1 for adults and children who are under 12 and are accompanied by their parents are admitted free. The canal boat ride costs 75 cents for adults and 35 cents for unaccompanied children.

Seek pot-grower group in Kentucky

LEXINGTON, Ky. (AP) — Law student Gatewood Galbraith says the state's small farmers need a Kentucky Marijuana Growers Association to claim their rightful share of a multibillion-dollar market if pot becomes legal.

A student at the University of Kentucky law school, Galbraith suggested big tobacco companies actively are looking out for their interests in preparation for the day when marijuana becomes a legal cash crop.

Galbraith recommended creation of the association in a letter to a newspaper here. He said some of his best friends are farmers and he wants to expand some of those friendships to organize pot growing. He has offered to serve as president to any Kentucky Marijuana Growers Association that might spring up.

Propose national youth job program

BOSTON (AP) — The director of the National Urban League has proposed a national youth employment program to save young people from "the rubbish heap of economic surplus and dependency."

Vernon E. Jordan Jr. said Sunday the league estimates the unemployment rate among young blacks 16 to 19 is 64 per cent.

"Denied the opportunity to equip themselves for self-sufficiency, they face enforced idleness, frustration, the temptations of the street and lifetimes of poverty and dependence," Jordan said.

He commented in the keynote speech at the league's 66th annual conference.
